Israeli voters moving to right

Tel Aviv (R) - Israelis have shifted towards ultra-nationalist parties seeking expulsion of Palestinians and more Jewish settlement in the occupied territories, according to a poll published Tuesday. Pollster Hanoch Smith said the survey published in Davar newspaper indicated the Guli crisis and the three-year-old Palestinian uprising had hardened the views of Israeli voters. Both the dovish opposition Labour Party and the colling a best of Palestinian Views to Labour Party and the colling a best of Palestinian Views to Labour Party and the colling a best of Palestinian Views to Labour Party and the colling a best of Palestinian Views to Labour Party and the colling a labour Party a ruling Likud Party of Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir had lost support to small right-wing parties since the last national election in 1988. Ultranationlist parties allied with Likud in a coalition since June had gained eight per cent since 1988, the poll showed. A coalition of Labour and Likud collapsed in March when Shamir refused to enter peace talks with Palestinians. In June, Likud formed the most right-wing government in Israel's history with religious and ultra-nationalist parties. The poll of 1,200 voters, conducted in November, showed 69 per cent of new voters a category inflated by Soviet immigration of up to 30,000 a month support Likud or its right-wing allies.

An independent Arab political daily published by the Jordan Press Foundation جوردان تليمز يومية سَيُّاسِيَّةُ تصدر يُّالْالْجَلْيْرِيةُ عن المؤسسة الصحفية الأردنية والراي،

irag walks out of Arab agency meeting

TUNIS (R) - The head of Iraq's delegation to an Arab League agency walked out of an executive council meeting on Tuesday in protest at the presence of a Kuwain delegate and at the council's refusal to replace the Kuwaiti chairman. Iraq had submitted a proposal to exclude the Kuwaiti delegate from the meeting of the Arab League Educational, Cultural and Scientific Organisation (ALECSO) and remove Chairman Abdul Rahman Al Khudari, who was the chief civil servant in Kuwait's education ninistry, diplomats said. But the council turned the proposal down because it arrived too late, they added. The Iraqi delegate withdrew and did not return for the rest of the Tuesday's meeting, the diplomats said. He had come from Baghdad for the occasion. The council put on the agenda a Kuwaiti proposal asking ALECSO to protect educational. cultural and scientific institutes in Kuwait from further damage by Iraqi troops, they added. Kuwait says the Iraqis have stripped schools and universities of everything they can move and shipped them back to Iraq.

Volume 15 Number 4577

AMMAN WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 19, 1990, JUMA'DAH AL THANI 1, 1411

Price: Jordan 100 fils; Saudi Arabia 1.50 riyals; UAE 1.50 dirhams

Rocard: Hope for Gulf peace not lost

BREST, France (R) -- The world should not give up hope of a peaceful solution to the Gulf crisis, French Prime Minister Michel Rocard said Tuesday."I think hope of seeing Iraq realise it cannot violate international law with impunity is far from being lost," he told a news conference at the Atlantic naval port of Brest. Rocard was seeing off the helicopter carrier Jeanne d'Arc on its annual round-theworld training cruise. "Before a negotiation ends in success, position harden and there are moments of serious tension," Rocard said referring to wrangling between Washington and Baghdad over dates for meetings

Iraq protests to U.S. for stopping Soviet ship

BAGHDAD (R) — Iraq said Tuesday it had protested strongly to the United States over what it called "acts of piracy" againt a Soviet ship in Jordan. A foreign ministry spokesman said the U.S. navy had stopped a Soviet ship, identified as Sovetskiy, from unloading the personal belongings of Iraqis at Aqaba. He said the Americans stopped the ship even though the crew told them the cargo consisted only of the personal belongings of Iraqis training in the Soviet Union. The spokesman, quoted by the official Iraqi News Agency, gave no date for the incident. It was unclear why Baghdad, target of an international blockade for months, was protesting at this stage. He said the Iraqi government "reserves its full right to defend its legitimate interests and to demand the rights of Iraq and its people, harmed by the acts of piracy of the U.S.

iran plans gas pipeline to Europe

NICOSIA (R) -- Iran is holding talks with several countries about laying a gas export pipeline to France via Turkey, Oil Minister Gholamreza Aqazadeh said Tuesday. He told reporters in Tehran that the pipeline would connect southern Iranian gas fields to the Turkish border via Qazin in central Iran, the Iranian news agency IRNA reported. The report did not say which other countries lay on the proposed route or with whom Iran was discussing the project. Aqazadeh said each country would undertake to build the section of the pipeline crossing its territory.

Anglican church urges prayers

LONDON (AP) - The next archbishop of Canterbury and other leading Anglican churchmen called on Christians Tuesday to pray for peace in the Middle East. "If war happens, there will be fearful loss of life and the scale of the escalation is unpredictable," said Bishop of Bath and Wells George Carey in a letter to the Independent newspaper bearing 16 other signatures, including 13 bishops. Although Christians divided on how to respond to the crisis, the churches should not keep silent, the letter said. "... We call on those who celebrate Christmas, and particularly those who attend church on Christmas eve. to pray for peace in the Middle East, possibly observing two minutes' silence at midnight," said the letter.

Assad meets U.S. legislator

DAMASCUS (R) - U.S. Congressman Wayne Owens and Ambassador Edward Dierejian discussed the Gulf crisis Tuesday with President Hafez Al Assad, officials and diplomats said. Owens, a member of the House of Representatives Foreign Relations Committee, is in Damascus for the second time in a week. Last Tuesday he met Foreign Minister Farouq Al Sharaa and Vice-President Abdul Halim Khaddam. Syria became an unlikely ally of the United States when it backed international resolutions condemning Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of

Iraq: Talks useless if U.S. wants only to stress U.N resolutions

EC insists meeting with Aziz only after his Washington talks with Bush

Combined agency dispatches

IRAQI PRESIDENT Saddam Hussein said Tuesday that talks with Washington may not be worth having, while European leaders refused to discuss the Gulf crisis with Iraq unless it first met with the United States.

Saddam, speaking to a Turkish journalist, said it would be uscless to hold direct talks with the United States if Washington only reiterates the U.N. Security; Council resolutions on the Guil

"We have already read them (the resolutions), we know them and we rejected them," Saddam said. The interview is to be broadcast on Turkish television later this week. Excerpts were released Tuesday.

U.S. President George Bush last month proposed direct U.S.-Iraqi talks. But Bush has stressed that the talks would be nothing more than an opportunity to make the U.S. position clear.

Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz had been due in Washington on Monday to meet with Bush. But the visit was put off after Saddam rejected U.S. proposals for a date for him to meet with U.S. Secretary of State James Baker.

The European Community (EC) had planned to meet with Aziz after he spoke with Bush. But with the U.S.-Iraqi talks in doubt, the EC was hesitant to go ahead with its diplomatic initia-

The 12 EC foreign ministers, meeting in Brussels, Belgium, decided Tuesday afternoon not to meet with Aziz unless he travels first to Washington.

"I think at midnight (on Jan. 15), if he's not totally out of Kuwait, the U.N. sanctions must be fulfilled," Bush told reporters in Washington Monday. But the president would not elaborate on what he would do if Iraq fails to meet the deadline.

(Continued on page 5)

banishment which may include hundreds," Gaza lawyer Nazem

Awaidah told an Arab Jerumilitary tribunal hearing appeals against the expulsions gave lawyers two hours to study dozens of documents provided by the security forces as evi-their mandate provides that they carry out a swift appeal hear-of Islamic Conference (OIC) called Tuesday for U.N. Security Council action to stop Israel from expelling Palestinians from

Hamid Al Gabid said in a statement Israel was punishing

Palestinians with "acts of repression, terrorism and large scale

He said the permanent Secur-

OIC Secretary-General

the occupied territories.

ing," Awaidah said.

"They specifically told us that

The 46-member Organisation

He said the three-member salem news conference.

dence.

16 wounded in occupied lands; U.N. vote delayed checking the reports.

took responsibility.

protest in Jerusalem.

Nuseirat. The army said it was

Police are still searching for two brothers from the Gaza

Strip suspected of carrying out

Friday's attack. The Muslim fundamentalist Hamas movement

Palestinians have escalated attacks on Israelis inside Israel in revenge for the Oct. 8 massacre of over 20 Palestinians during a ies stayed closed on Tuesday for a general strike called by Hamas to protest at Israeli orders on Saturday to expel four Hamas members and at the arrests of

In Jerusalem, Palestinians

stoned an Israeli hus and wound.

ed one passenger, police said.
In the walled Old City of Jerusalem, Palestinians stoned

former New York Mayor Ed

Koch as he toured the area (See page 2). Lawyers fighting the expulsion orders said they ex-scores of Hamas activists.

Shops in the occupied territor-

OCCUPIED JERUSALEM (Agencies) — Israeli soldiers shot and wounded 16 Palestinians in the occupied territories Tuesday during a strike to protest Israeli plans to expel four Palestinians, residents said.

Witnesses quoted by Reuters said one was a 60-year-old employee of the Nablus municipality whose car was stopped at a roadblock. Soldiers fired on the car after signalling it to proceed, An army spokesman said the man had refused to stop at the roadblock.

Palestinian refugees in the Gaza Strip battled Israeli soldiers with stones after the army lifted curfews from three Gaza Strip refugee camps. The curfews were imposed Friday after three Israeli factory workers were stabbed to death in Tel

Hospitals in Gaza said 10 Palestinians were shot and wounded in the Nuseirat refugee camp and five others in Khan Younis and Jabalya camps.

Israel Radio said the army shot and wounded a masked Palestinian carrying a pistol in Iraq says

to leave

Soviets free

pected further mass banishment ity Council members should exof Palestinians. ert pressure on Israel to prevent "I sensed that the Israelis were trying to rush the appeal (Continued on page 5) hearing...I belive the four are

BAGHDAD (R) - Iraq told a senior Soviet envoy Tuesday that all Soviet technicians were free to leave the country even if their contracts had not run out. agency APS said.

Baghdad Radio quoted Hussein Kamel Hassan, the minister of industry and military industrialisation who is also acting oil minister, as telling the Soviet foreign trade ministry's first undersecretary, Vladimir Mord-

"Iraq allows Soviet experts working in the country to leave as they wish irrespective of the date of termination of their contracts."

Mordvinov was quoted by the radio as saying: "The departure of some Soviet experts for a temporary period will not affect the level of relations between the two countries."

Soviet embassy officials said Monday that Mordvinov was negotiating the departure of the advisers.

Soviet special envoy Yevgeny Primakov told TASS news agency earlier Tuesday that "technicproblems were responsible for delays in repatriating Soviet. experts from Iraq.

He said about 1,000 Soviet specialists had chosen to remain in Iraq to complete their contracts. Before the Invasion of Kuwait, 9,000 Soviet nationals worked in Iraq.

Iraq announced on Dec. 4 that all Soviet nationals could leave "provided the Soviet government alone bears the responsibility for the effects of breaches of contracts."

Benjedid returns home. plans to visit S. Arabia

ALGIERIA (Agencies) -Algerian President Chadli Benjedid, back from a week-long Middle East tour, will continue Gulf peace efforts with a visit to Saudi Arabia, the Algerian news

Benjedid visited nine countries but not Saudi Arabia, whose hosting of hundreds of thousands of U.S. and allied troops on the border with Kuwait makes it key to any Gulf

"Algeria intends to pursue its action in a continuous fashion to preserve the chances of peace and to guarantee, without offending anyone, the return to international legality," APS said Monday night.

"These efforts assume other consultations with concerned parties and in the framework Benjedid is expected to make other trips, notably to Saudi Arabia, shortly," it added.

Diplomatic and official sources had said before Benjedid left he would visit Saudi Arabia but the kingdom, appearing cool to the peace mission, said last week no date had been set.

The trip, including talks with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and the leaders of Jordan, Iran, Oman, Syria, Lebanon, Egypt, Libva and Tunisia, appeared to have achieved no breakthrough. But APS said Algeria, a seasoned mediator in Middle East conflicts, would continue to seek an Arab contribution to a peace settlement to spare the region a catastrophic war. The Arab contribution to a settlement of the crisis remains inevitable and possible, even if things escaped from the hands of the Arabs at the beginning of the conflict," APS quoted Foreign Minister Sid Ahmad Ghozali as saying.

Benjedid intends to invest the credibility, confidence and sincerity of Algeria to prevent catastrophe and destruction of the Arab World's potential," APS added.

Benjedid said in Tunis that war would be a disaster for the Middle East and the world as a

His trip was the latest of many Arab initiatives on the Gulf cri-

Benjedid had a second round of talks on Tuesday morning with Tunisian President Zine Al Abidine Ben Ali. The official news agency TAP said they discussed bilateral relations, the Arab Maghreb Union and Benjedid's Middle East tour.

Benjedid said the journey had given him a better understanding of the problem rather than re-

"I wanted to come to Tunis to explain my impressions, if that's the right expression, I won't say the results, which I reached on this long trip;" he told reporters at Tunis airport.

One can now say one has an idea, even if incomplete, about the complicated issue which is the Gulf issue," he added.

Benjedid repeated his conclusion that the Arabs could coutribute to a solution but the Gulf crisis had become international with the involvement of the Un-

where he was received by the division's commander and senior officers. The King visited one of the formations of the division and was briefed by its commander on progress of military training

U.N. moves to address Palestinian problem will help Gulf peace efforts — Crown Prince

AMMAN (J.T.) — His Royal Highness Crown Prince Hassan has said that ignoring the occupation of Palestine for the last 23 years had inflicted a feeling of bitterness among the Arabs peoples.

In an interview with CBS Television, the Crown Prince also reiterated Jordan's principled position on the Gulf crisis: "Jordan's position is the hope that peace can break out in the next few days rather than war," he said. "We have seen mass demonstration in the occupied territories over the last three years — the intifada. And that has (affected) people in this country to the point where the occupation, the annexation of Kuwait was criticised in the early days. But, of course, the massive international response, the insistence on resolving the problem and the ignoring of the 23-year old issue called Israeli occupation of Palestine had led to a great deal of bitterness. "If there is a Security Council resolution tomorrow with a preamble to refer to the international conference and that a resolution that talks about protecting Palestinians, this might help temper the general mood."

"We are apologists for peace in this country," the Crown Prince said. "We are not apologists for Iraq or the U.S. or for anyone else. We are trying to play the middle-of-the-path role which, as you know, in politics is a very difficult task." Asked where there was a possibility that Iraq might withdraw from Kuwait by Jan. 15 or make partial withdrawal, the Crown

"As (U.S.) Secretary (of State James) Baker suggested, partial withdrawais are not acceptable. But at the same time if that process were to start it would obviously take some time to realise. I have no evidence of that at the moment and with the very high tensions at the moment and the corresponding intransigence on both sides and the very personalised debate on both sides, I think it is really short of a miracle really to talk of the possibility of peace in the next few days. I would like to see peace break out. But I only see a

(Continued on page 5)

Deputies debate budget; suggestions vary

By Abdullah Hasanat Jordan Times Staff Reporter

AMMAN -- Although the 1991 budget bill proposed by the government of Prime Minister Mudar Badran seems to be heading for approval, deputies used the occasion of debating it vesterday to offer a variety of recipes to remedy the country's political, economic and social

Before closing the session for a secret briefing by the prime minister on the Gulf crisis and

Jordan's position on it, the House heard the report of its Financial Committee that approved the draft budget with the total figure of expenditure and some reservations made by four deputies. During the debate that started only a JD 10 million reduction in Tuesday and will be resumed this morning, one deputy, Husnationalist from Jerash, called on the prime minister to resign so that a new government could be formed. The new government. Mujiali said, should adopt alternative policies that would "protect Jordan's right of existence" and address the country's economic problems. Bassam Hadadin, a leftist deputy from Zarqa, who is a member of the Financial Committee.

said he objected to the committee's approval of the draft budget and urged the House to Haddadin cited a number of reasons for his position. He said he agreed with Finance Minister budget was "only a continuation of previous budgets' trends." He said that the budget revenues depended mostly on increased indirect taxes that would heavily weigh on the poor. "This was done instead of increasing income tax on people with higher income," he said.

He said the budget was still in the red and was heavily dependent on external borrowing to He said that although the draft budget talks about a 1990-1996 comprehensive economic plan. that plan "was worked out behind closed doors, without involving the political and econointerest of all social strata.

The 22-strong Muslim Brotherhood bloc in the House called for a comprehensive economic plan based on Islamic principles. The Brotherhood demanded the government review all financial legislation "in order to weed out any laws that contradict the Islamic Sharia."

(Continued on page 5)

Iran voices concern over day the United Nations and not U.S. plans

NICOSIA (Agencies) — Iranian President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani denounced Baghdad's invasion of Kuwait Tuesday but said Iran opposed any U.S. attack on Iraq.

"We are feeling very measy over the fact that the Iraqi people may be hurt by the Americans," Rafsanjani told college students in a question-andanswer session in Tehran.

"The Iraqi regime has perpe trated an obscene act by invading Kuwait and this invasion is not acceptable to Iran," the Iranian news agency IRNA quoted Rafsanjani as saying.

"Iraq's unconditional withdrawal from Kuwait is the only solution to the 'Persian' Gulf crisis," the president added.

Iran stepped up diplomatic efforts this month to help avert war ahead of the Jan. 15 U.N. deadline for Iraq to quit Kuwait or face force.

Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati was due to arrive in Sweden Tuesday after Gulf crisis talks in Qatar, Oman and the United Arab Emirates. "The trips being made by Iran's foreign minister nowdays are aimed at preventing the outbreak of a war," IRNA quoted Rafsanjani as saying.

Despite condemning Iraq's actions in Kuwait, Tehran has been improving ties with Baghdad since Iraq and Iran agreed to make peace in mid-August. Rafsanjani said Iran had documents proving some Iranian prisoners of war were still alive in Iraq despite Baghdad's claim that all had been repatriated. The prisoners swap, which has continued intermittently since August, would resume as soon as the fate of the missing Iranians was clarified, Rafsanjani added.

Arafat: U.N should lead HARARE (R) - Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat said Tues-

the United States should lead peace talks in the Gulf crisis. "Peace talks are welcome but why should it be Bush and Baker (the American president and secretary of state)? Why not let the (U.N.) secretary-general do it?" he told a news conference during a four-hour visit before flying on to Tanzania. Baghdad and Washington, which has led a massive international military build-up in the Gulf following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait in August, are deadlocked on when to organise a visit to Baghdad by U.S. Secretary of State James Baker.

"It is an international issue and not American business." Arafat said after talks with Zimbabwean President Robert Mugabe, adding that the world should pursue peace "because there will be no winner in a

The chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO), on an African tour to seek support for linking the Gulf crisis and the Palestinian issue, said he still hoped the planned talks between the Bush administration and Iraq would help achieve

He said Iraq and the United States should be able to iron out the differences on meeting dates, saying: "We appreciate sooner or later that they jump over the snag of dates.

Arafat has said Arabs should not trust the United States when it says a settlement of the Palestinian problem would be discussed once Iraq pulled out of Knwait

The U.N. Security Council is debating a draft resolution calling for the protection of Palestimians in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. The draft also refers to a Middle East peace conference.

Arafat arrived in Harare aboard a Libyan Boeing 727. PLO officials accompanying him said he had travelled in the civilian jet across the Middle East and Africa since his talks on Saturday in Baghdad with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz.

The PLO and a few Arab states are sympathetic to Iraq over the Gulf crisis and oppose the U.S.-led military buildup in the area. Arafat has consistently called for an Arab solution to end the crisis.

Mugabe, a former chairman of the 102-nation Non-Aligned Movement, backs U.N. measures against Iraq but says impartial, non-aligned countries would be better placed to negotiate peace than Arab countries or the United Nations.

French stand mars NAT BRUSSELS (R) - The North

Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO) pledged on Tuesday to tackle new threats to Western security from any quarter now the cold war is over and warned that European Community (EC) defence plans must not exclude any of its members or hurt the alliance.

But a dramatic row with France, arguing with its partners about NATO's future role. spoilt the image of unity as the alliance tackles controversial questions and begins reassessing traditional U.S. leadership in defence issues. NATO sources told Reuters that France threatened to walk out of the meeting's final session after a row over how far the alliance should extend newlyestablished diplomatic contacts with its former foes in the Warsaw Pact.

"I would call it a flaming row," said one source. The 16 alliance foreign ministers said in a statement at the end of a two-day meeting that U.S. forces must remain in Europe to guarantee stability, even though the traditional Soviet-led threat had gone. "We will focus our major long-term efforts on... ensuring that the allies can successfully meet new challenges to security from any quarter," it said. NATO Security General Manfred Woerner told a news conference this did not mean the alliance could intervene militarily in regional crises outside its own territory. The subject is deeply divisive within the alliance, with countries like Britain and the United States favouring such intervention and others, notably France, strongly opposed.

The statement's phrasing appeared to paper over divisions on the issue that have come up during the meeting.

Woerner also said emerging plans for the 12-nation EC to take on a defence and security role were welcome, but that these must not exclude the United States. Canada or alliance members which are not EC members.

"When we refer to the the European pillar inside our alliance, we do not exclude any member nation," he said.

Woerner said at the news conference that NATO was showing solidarity and consensus as it reassessed its own future. But the row with France. which left the alliance's military structure in 1966 and resents U.S: leadership, appeared to contradict that

It also dashed hopes, expressed recently by some NATO members, that France would move back towards NATO's mainstream.

French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas had left the two-day meeting Monday for other appointments.

to conserve fuel oil

BAGHDAD (AP) — The Oil Ministry urged Iraqis Wednes-day to stockpile oil and petroleum products for the winter to avoid shortages if war erupts in the Gulf.

The announcement, published by the government's Al Joumhuriya daily, said the ministry will provide the market with fuel oil, kerosene, cooking gas, gasoline and diesel so that purchases can be made.

"We hope that all citizens will buy their needs so they may overcome any shortages that might result from an aggresion on our oil installations," it said.

Iraq was producing around 3.1 million barrels of oil a day, of which 100,000 barrels a day were needed for domestic consumption, before its Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Iraq has shut down an estimated 75 per cent of its oilfields

Iraqis urged | Allies aim to topple Iraqi air power

BAHRAIN (R) — If a Gulf war breaks out, allied planes aim to win control of the skies within hours by launching a devastating strike against Iraqi air power, a British air force commander said Wednesday.

Group Captain David Henderson, commander of two squadrons of royal air force Tornado and Jaguar ground attack bombes in Bahrain, said his aircraft were ready to go to war. His pilots were flying training missions round the clock and there would be no let-up in their high state of readiness over the coming holiday.

"It will be business as usual throughout the Christmas period." Henderson told repor-"The capabilities that we have against the Iraqis mean we could very quickly obtain air superiority," he said.

"I think we will use all the air assets we have got out here... to be able to mount a very carefully

Communists oppose coordinated attack to respond to anything they throw at us," be

French

Gulf role

PARIS (AP) - Secretary-General Georges Marchais opened the French Communist Party's national congress Tuesday with sharp criticism of France's participation in the Gulf crisis.

"This war cannot be our war," Marchais said of a possible conflict in the Gulf.

Marchais, who like his party is 70 years old, also pledged to press ahead with a crusade against capitalism in France. even as he admitted that international communism is in deep trouble.

He ruled out any resumption of cooperation with the governing socialists, saying President Francios Mitterrand has forsaken the left and implemented "the policies sought by big money, the policies of the Marchais' nearly four-hour speech to more than 1,700 delegates opened the party's five-day congress, being held at a time when the organisation has its lowest level of support in decades. It remains, however, one of the west's largest communist parties.

The organisation claims 600,000 members, although even party members say the figure is inflated. Its support in recent national elections has dropped below 10 per cent.

Communists hold 26 of 577 seats in the National Assembly. In 1916, they held 182 seats, the most of any party, but their share dropped to 11 in 1981 and 35 in 1986.

The party also controls 1,097 municipal councils, including dozens of working-class suburbs around major cities, but only one community - Le Havre has more than 100,000 people. The party congress, held every three years, is the highest-level forum for choosing leadership and setting policy. This one is its first since the fall of communist governments in Eastern Europe. Marchais criticised the Soviet Union's decision to authorise use of force against Iraq in the

"deeply disappointed the people He has previously criticised France's deployment of about 13,000 troops, 11 ships, and three squadrons of aircraft as part of the multinational force arrayed against Iraq in the Gulf.

It is France's largest deployment abroad since the Algerian war in Gulf crisis, saying this move

Expected wave of Falashas meets Israeli resistance

By Gwen Ackerman The Associated Press

TEL AVIV - Israeli towns, already burdened with absorbing thousands of Soviet immigrants. are reluctant to accept the 20.000 Ethiopian Jews expected to arrive in the next year, officials sav.

Shimon Shetreet, treasurer of the quasi-governmental Jewish Agency that helps handle immigration to Israel, told Israel Radio Tuesday that resistance was centred in so-called development towns created in outlying

"Most of those development towns who the agency was in contact with told us they were opposed to absorbing immigrations from Ethiopia... fearing the absorption of a large number will add to the socioeconomic problems they aiready have," said Shetreet.

Gad Ben Ari, spokesman for the agency, referred to "pockets of resistance" to the Ethiopian immigrants, citing economic and social burdens caused by settling the African Jews, known as Falashas, who come mostly from peasant backgrounds.

He added in a telephone interview: "This is very grave in our eyes. Simha Dinitz, director of the agency, calls the resistance totally unjustified and unaccept-

Ethiopian Jews have complained recently that Israeli officials were holding up the flow of immigrants because of question over their Jewishness.

But Israel has maintained the stalled immigration was due to Ethiopian President Haile Mengistu Mariam, who reportedly has demanded imports of Israeli arms in exchange for freeing Jews from his country. Officials in Washington said Monday that Mengistu's government reached agreement last month with U.S. and Israeli diplomats to allow about 1,000 Jews to leave each month.

Immigration officials here said they expect a faster rate of immigration and predicted all 20,000 Jews trying to leave before the end of 1991.

Ethiopian Jews, who trace their lineage to Biblical times, lived in isolation from mainstream Jewish life for over 2,000 years. In 1981, Israel launched a secret airlift with U.S. support to rescue them.

Some 8,000 were evacuated before Operation Moses became public, causing the government of Ethiopia to block further de-

After Ethiopia and Israel resumed diplomatic relations in October 1989, about 400 to 500 Jews were leaving the country each month for Israel. However, the flow was stopped from July through November. The Ethiopians have caused controversy here because ultra-orthodox Jews have demanded they undergo symbolic conver-sion to Judaism, a step of African Jews have opposed.

However, Jewish Agency officials and news reports blamed the reluctance to house the black Jews by Israeli towns on the burden of absorbing Soviets arriving at the rate of more than 1,000 daily.

They also cited complaints that the Ethiopians require more care since most are unskilled and uneducated. More than half of the Ethiopians who arrived through Operation Moses remain in absorption centres. The mayors of Dimona and Shlomi were quoted in the daily Hadashot as citing lack of apartments as reason for not wanting the Ethiopians. Both said that all vacant apartments have been filled by the new Soviet arrivals. Some 155,000 Soviet Jews have arrived in Israel in the past year and officials expect a million by the end of 1992.

However, Hadashot also reported that the town of Maalot said last year it could not accept Ethiopians because it could not afford to refurbish apartments for them. Now, the newspaper said, 500 Soviets are living in the same buildings.

Despite Ethiopian complaints of being pushed aside by the more easily absorbed Soviet immigration, Ben Ari said he was confident the Ethiopians would benefit from the simultaneous influx.

"The Ethiopian Jews will be part of the momentum and the process will be much easier this time." he said.

MIDDLE EAST NEWS IN BRIEF

French pacifists stop Guif-bound ferry.

DUNKIRK, France (R) - Pacifists and trade unionists in the French port of Dunkirk have stopped a government-charge ferry carrying equipment for French forces in the Gulf, officials said Wednesday. They said scamen and dockers prevented the ferry from leaving Tuesday night and some 20 pacifists opposed to France's involvement in the Guif boarded the ship. France has 6,200 troops in Saudi Arabia and is sending 3,300 reinforcements

Dutch wants option to refuse Gulf duty

THE HAGUE (R) - A Dutch conscripts' union has asked parliament to rule that soldiers doing their military service be allowed to refuse any call for duty in the Gulf. The Netherlands is weighing whether to sent ground forces or otherwise increase is contribution to the Western efforts to dislodge Iraq from Kuwan The Union for Conscript Soldiers, which fights to improve conditions for conscripts, said that if the government decided to send ground troops, conscripts should be asked to go only on a voluntary basis. "Conscripts must in all cases decide themselves whether or not they will take part in a force in the Gulf," the petition said. A Defence Ministry spokesman declined to comment on the petition, saying that no decision on whether to send Dutch ground troops had yet been made. But he noted that the 700 Dutch marines on two frigates so far sent by the Netherlands to the Gulf had all freely consented to their task.

Danish warship rescues Iranians

COPENHAGEN (AP) — A Danish warship Wednesday rescued six Iranian seamen off a freighter that sank after a collision with another vessel in the Gulf, Denmark's public radio reported. The sailors were being treated for exposure in the sick-bay of the Danish corvette Olfert Fischer after spending six hours in the sea, the radio said. They were to be taken to Dubai later Wednesday. A seventh crewman from the Iranian freighter was still missing, the radio said. A U.S. destroyer and a Norwegian supply ship joined the search. The freighter was en route from Dubai to the Iranian port of Bandar Abbas around midnight local time when it was rammed and sunk by a larger vessel, said the radio. The other ship sailed on and disappeared in the dark. The incident occurred near the Hormuz Strait at the mouth of the Gulf. The Iranian vessel was not identified in the report.

Judge revokes bail for Nosair

NEW YORK (AP) — A judge, disclosing that he had been threatened, revoked Al Sayyid Nosair's $300,000 bail Tuesday and ordered the suspect in the killing of Rabbi Meir Kahane remanded to to jail. State Supreme Court Justice Alvin Schlesinger cited several factors as evidence that there was a strong likelihood that Nosair, 35, a native of Egypt, would flee. Among them was a passport Nosair held in a different name. The judge also noted that officials had found some cyanide in Nosair's workplace locker at a Manhattan address, where he worked as a city heating maintenance man. Schlesinger said the cyanide could be used to poison someone or commit suicide. The judge said he believed prosecutors had a strong case against Nosair, who is accused of gunning down the Jewish leader at a Manhattan hotel on Nov. 5. Schlesinger noted a bullet-ridden piece of plasterboard that prosecutors removed from Nosair's Chiffside Park, New Jersey, home. During the bail hearing, the judge also disclosed that he received numerous death threats and attempts to influence him via telephone messages and mail. His admission prompted defence attorney Michael Warren to ask that Schlesinger remove himself from the case, which the judge promptly denied saying the threats and attempts to pressure him would not affect his handling of the case. The next hearing in the case was set for March 4.

Eqypt's Azhar slams Israel

CAIRO (R) - Egypt's Al Azhar, the world's oldest seat of Islamic learning, attacked Israel Wednesday for ordering four ms out of the occupied territories and failing to protect Muslim holy places. "Al Azhar condemns Israeli threats to continue aggression on holy places in Jerusalem and the expulsion of Arabs from their homes," said a statement carried by the Middle East News Agency. Israel ordered the expulsion of four Palestinians, after the stabbing to death on Friday of three Israelis in Tel Aviv. The statement also denounced Israel for failing "to perform its duties towards the protection of holy places of all religions." It held Israel responsible for actions by its nationals at the holy sites. Jerusalem's Al Agsa mosque is Islam's third holiest place. The statement called on Palestinians "to hold on to their land and defend their holy places even with their own bodies." It urged Muslim nations and international organisations to take action "to protect unarmed Arabs and enable them to exercise their human rights."

200 to 20

Apple Lib

..... 150 / 100 550 / 450 140 / 100 250 / 200

Sports programme Religious seminar

.. News sun

Local program

Local programme Arabic series

Programme could

ary in Andi

Prench file

News in French

News in Hebra

. Shaker News in English

News in Arabi

ملت عب

some parts of the Gulf should leave the area well before the January 15 deadline for Iraqi troops to quit Kuwait, Foreign Affairs Minister Don McKinnon said on Wednesday. McKinnon said in a statement that he was offering common sense advice because of the possibility of war breaking out in the region after the deadline, set by the United Nations Security Council. The advice to quit applies to dependents in Bahrain, Qatar and the Eastern Province and southern parts of Saudi Arabia. Last month, the new National Party government reversed the policy of its Labour predecessor by announcing that New Zealand would join the multinational force in the Gulf. It is due to send two Hercules transport aircraft shortly.

enough to do the job." Saudi Arabia halts jet fuel exports to boost military stocks

DUBAI (R) - Saudi Arabia has stopped all jet fuel and diesel oil exports to boost military stocks before the United Nations Jan. 15 deadline for Iraq to quit Kuwait, Gulf-based oil traders

"It seems the (Saudi) government has instructed the refineries to stop all gas oil and ke-rosene exports," an oil trader in the Gulf said.

Almost 2,000 warpianes, the cutting edge of the multinational forces ranged against Iraq, need kerosene, the basis of jet fuel. Turbine-powered warships and some U.S. tanks also consume jet fuel. Diesel oil powers most tanks, troop carriers, missile launchers and other transport vehicles. Riyadh has undertaken to supply the fuel needs of the U.S.-led multinational forces massed in the kingdom.

"It seems Saudi Arabia wants to have full (fuel) tanks on Jan. 15," one oil trader said. Oil industry sources also said three of the kingdom's major refineries Ras Tannurah Jubail and Riyadh, lay within range of Iraqi missiles. This was another reason for a rapid buildup of U.N. deadline.

Oil traders in Singapore said Tuesday that Mobil, which operates a joint venture export refinery with Saudi Arabia at Yanbu on the Red Sea coast, had declared force majeure on kerosene and gas oil exports. Force majeure exempts parties to a contract from their obligations because of events outside their control.

Saudi Arabia had already stopped all products exports from its Ras Tannurah refinery, the world's biggest, after a fire on Nov. 30 forced a shutdown of the whole plant, until the first week of January. Jet fuel and diesel oil exports from Jubail refinery on the Gulf. a joint venture with Shell, had also been halted since the first week of December. Oil industry sources in the Gulf said the closure of Ras Tannurah refinery until the first week fo January has forced the kingdom to divert all available fuel sources to supply the multinational forces. .The sources said they believed the closure of Ras Tannurah refinery would not affect the fighting capabilities of the U.S.led multinational forces due to already high levels of stocks and the existence of other sources in and outside the kingdom.

fineries altogether with a total capacity of around 1.7 million b/d, including Ras Tannurah. Out of the six remaining operational refineries, three are 50/ 50 joint ventre export refineries. They are at Jubail on the Gulf (250,000 b/d), and Yanbu (250,000 b/d) and Rabigh (325,000 b/d) on the Red Sea, with Sehll, Mobil and the Greek

Henderson asserted intial air superiority could be won "within hours," although other air force sources said it could take "days rather than weeks" to establish

Henderson said overall victory

Iraq has around 500,000 could not be achieved without troops in or near Kuwait and since the August 2 invasion they have been digging in behind deep anti-tank ditches and high

British air force officers are at pains to stress that while they do not want war, they will strike

Squadron leader Chris Allam, who flies Jaguars, said: "I think you always have doubts, you wouldn't be human if you didn't have doubts. But we have got hard if hostilities start.

control in the skies.

ground forces.

company Petrola respectively.

The other three Sandi refineries are located at Jeddah (91,000 b/d), Riyadh (134,000 b/d) and Yanbu (170,000 b/d) and mainly serve the domestic market.

Oil industry sources said Saudi Arabia, by running its remaining six refineries at almost full capacity, could process around 1.2 million barrels of crude. Apart from the refineries in

Saudi Arabia, Bahrain's 250,000 b/d refinery, linked to the Arabian Peninsula by a 30-kilometre causeway, had been supplying the U.S. navy and air force in the Gulf with jet fuel even before Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Three other refineries are operating on the Gulf-coast of the Arabian Peninsula. Qatar has a 60,000 b/d plant, and Abu Dhabi an 80,000 b/d domestic refinery at Umm Al Nar and a 120,000 b/d export refinery at Outside the Gulf. Oman has a 70,000 b/d plant and Yemen, a sympathiser of Iraq, a 170,000 b/d refinery at Aden.

government plan Sudanese refugees caught between drought

JORDAN TIMES DAILY GUIDE AND CALENDAR

775121

By Mohammad Osman The Associated Press

AL OBEID - Like thousands of others suffering the effects of a worsening drought and threatened by famine, Awadalla Bakheit and his family straggled across western Sudan seeking help. Yet, like other refugees streaming into this regional capital, they may merely be given some food and money and shipped back to the coun-

The government is trying to discourage a large permanent camp in Al Obeid, which is proving to be an uphill battle. "I walked four days to reach here. We're just waiting for the will of God and what the government will decide," said

35-year-old Bakheit at the

Rukub camp for displaced people 16 kilometres north of the city.

Weary-looking men, women and children cluster under the few trees, seeking shade. Tents are not provided, a move by the military government to prevent settlement. Across Sudan, Africa's largest nation, two consecutive years of drought conditions have led to fears a serious famine may loom. In the Kordofan region of which Al Obeid is the capital, nearly a third of the 3.5 million inhabitants have been affected. Authorities in Al Obeid, about 325 kilometres southwest of Khartoum, have declared the region a disaster area, but the central government refuses to officially acknowledge the crisis. Famine has struck most of the country, affecting up to seven million of its 25 million people, and much worse is expected within six months. Relief professionals say a million tons of food are needed to

The United States and other Western donors have condemned the government for refusing to acknowledge that an emergency exists, thus preventing the international relief avert disaster.

Ahmad Omer, deputy director of the Rukub camp, said 9,000 people recently arrived from the nearby countryside. "We will supply them with a month's food and pocket money," he said.

in trucks, either back home or to areas where they can find work.

Omer said turning people away from the camp was part of the policy of Omer Hassan Al Bashir's government not to encourage large settlements. In 1984-85, thousands died in Sudanese camps for lack of adequate food and medicine. Col. Faisal Medani Mukhtar, the region's military governor, was quoted by the government newspaper Al Inkaz Al Watany as saying his region needs 330,000 tons of food to see it through until the next harvest in late 1991. A lack of rain made this winter's harvest a total failure. and schools were closed after recent rioting and looting of has been eased somewhat by distribution in some areas of 3,500 sacks of dura, the Sudancese staple sorghum, provided by the European Community and the government.

Displaced people arrive at the camps in fairly good health," according to Omer, although he attested to a few malnourished children. Comprehensive health records do not exist, but Al Obeid's hospital admitted 15 adults and children over a twoday period suffering from malnutrition or related problems such as overeating.

An official at the hospital said the overeating occurred when people who had gone without food for days stuffed themselves at a relief kitchen. He said no hunger-related deaths had been reported in the Al Obeid hospital. Western Kordofan also faces a shortage of drinking water because it depends on rainwater as its main source.

The regional capital's 600,000 residents have only a third of the 1.5 billion gallons of water they need daily, government's television has reported, and the locals blame their thirst partly on the displaced people at Rukub and other camps.

Libya has offered to help build a pipeline more than 50 kilometres long to solve the region's water needs. But the project would not be completed in time to help this year's drought victims. The United Nations' children's organisation UNICEF

has provided $50,000 to buy

New Zealanders advised to leave Gulf

WELLINGTON (R) — Dependents of New Zealanders living in

JORDAN TELEVISION Tel: 773111-19

Programme review
Children programme
Book of Adventure

PROGRAMME ONE

18:10 Local program
19:50 Programme revi	c.
20:90 News in Ara	bic
20:36 Local ser	ic
21:39 Programme revi	~
21:49 Local program
Z2:20 Arabic fi
23:00 News in Ara	-
Land Mean in via PROGRAMME TWO
,
IB:90 Cartoo
15:35 Document	uу
19:00 News in Fren
19:15 Reportage d'Actuali	to 19-30 News in Hebr
19:45 Yariet
29:90 News ID Ara
29-39 Bill Cosby Sh
21:18 Black For 22:09 News in Engl 22:29 Feature film: "Hollywood I)¢• tective"
PRAYER TIMES

ינבוו ו	***************************************
14:17
	CHURCHES
	-11-14-11-11-1
l

Assembiles of God Church, Tel. 632785. St. Joseph Church Tel. 624590. De la Salle Church Tel. 661757 eta Chanch Tel: 622366

Catholic Church Tci. Armen 771331. Armenian Orthodox Church Tel. St. Ephrain Church Tel. 771751. Amusaz International Church Tel. 827981, 685326. Evangelical Letheran Church Tel:

WEATHER

Bulletin supplied by the Department of scattered showers. Winds we southeasterly moderate. In Aq will be partly cloudy with no moderate winds and calm seasons.	aba, it

Min /max,	temp.
Ammao	6/16
Aqaba
Deserts	4 / 18

Anglicas Cherch Tel. 625383, Tel. 628543.

The Church of Joses Christ of Latter-Day Saints Tel. 815817 and 654932.

and there will be a chance for light

Food Control Centre

operation needed to head off mass starvation.

food stocks. Omer said the emergency They are then sent packing

USEFUL TELEPHONE Numbers NIGHT DUTY

AMMAN: Dr. Anwar Agrabawi Dr. Saich Zayed Dr. Ahmad Al Daga Dr. Khalil Al Habali 740740 First pharmacy
Ferdows pharmacy
Al Asema pharmacy
Nairoukh pharmacy 63,7255 636730 644945 637660 Dr. Assiad Obeidat Al Sharas' phermacy (985238) Dr. Ghassan Al Facili EMERGENCIES

Civil Defence Immediate

Public Security Department 630321 Water and Sewerage Amman Municipality 787111 Telephone Information 121 623102 Abdali Telephone Repairs 661107 773111 774111 Radio Jordan .. Water Authority Jordan Electricity Authority ... 815615 Electric Power RJ Plight Information 08-53200 Ouecn Alia Intl. Airport..... 08-53200 HOSPITALS

Blood Bank

Humein Medical Centre 813813/32 Khalidi Materuity, J. Anna ... 64281/6 Akileb Materuity, J. Anna ... 642441/2 Jabel Ann 65236 Maine, J. Ammon Palestine, Shmeisen 664171/4

657227/9 666127/37 Italian, Al-Mahaireen 777101/3 Al-Bashir, J. Ashrafich Army, Marks lationolii silA na ZAROA: Zarqa Govt. Hospital (09)983323 Zarqa National Hospital ... (09)991071 Ibu Sina Hospital (09)986732 . (02)275555 Greek Catholic Hospital (02)272275 Ibn Al Nafees Hospital.... (02)247100 Princess Haya Hospital (03)314111

POR THE TRAVELLER QUEEN ALIA INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT This information is supplied by Royal Jordanian (RI) information depart-ment at the Oveen Alia International

Airport Tel (08)53200-5, should always be verified. ARRIVALS Royal Jordanian (RJ) Flights

Dubai, Abu Dhabi (RJ) Larmaça (RJ) 17:30 London (RI) 13:00 19:30 acu (RJ)

Other Flights (Terminal 2) . Sama (LH) Riyadh (SV) Ankara (TK) 13:00 . Dubei (EK) Muscat, Batumin (GF) Cairo (MS) Listanbel (KL) Frankfort (LH)

DEPARTURES Royal Jordanian (RJ) Flights (Terminal (1) 13:15 Paris (RJ)

نيا مرجازه د المحت

17:15

20:45 21:00 21:20 21:45 21:45 JORDAN TELEVISION Other Flights (Terminal (2) Tel: 773111-19 00:00 11:10 Damascus, Paris (AF 10:00 10:15 Bahrain, Muscat (GF) Children programme Religious programme
Friday's prayer Ankara, Istanbul (TK)
..... Dubai (EK) 17:20 11:49 12:45 14:15 16:00 18:50 18:10 MARKET PRICES rer price in file per kg. 600 / 500 500 / 450 450 / 400 22-10 100 / 50 23:10 PROCEAMME TWO 150 / 100 180 / 140 13.0 500 / 400 19:30 24:00 24:30 1400 / 1000 550 / 450 200 / 150 120 / 60 240 / 200 250 / 200 PRAYER THES Onion (green) 200 / 150 95:84 06:26 Okra 600 / 500 400 / 250 200 / 160 140 / 100 330 / 280 14:17 16:49 14:43

... Bahrain, Abu Dhabi (RJ)

s) — Palesting sch Tuesday at he afe for America corter of Israel told reporters.

or. Teddy kola h the narrowste. osed for a gener wish courist for urge in the the urge in the the.

n. which include:
n Israelis and Purism to Jerost;
ice shot dead is to death eight be ı street in bes deçi rieved the stope

The two that houring level of arrests in the ed in a strike cal to protest Israel: ions were orderd aelis that wat b NS IN B

nate 500 metro red because he inistry spokes he decision to a s made by the ke s. "Iraq itself 5; iews briefing He offered to the narantee loam #: Dops in G

om Iraq

I visit British Inc ce said Tuesda; ur-old heir me av with the me e of security is liament has be aurants and de of narrowly rat sering religious i parry demande rtisement

s ruime coalmon tween the most whose polical da. kmans to@ firms would don't entionational for ierence Japan we: st from the U.S.t has set aside lore goods, included er cars, as well at containers, less e in the United's

ment said. is trip "was made age progress a: to make death be satisfied mil-Jews who as opia cen do a ment issued he

S officials saids en had received i Israel and Es Manon would as: any arms sales i re administrators oris to import s record. to l reliei shipmen famine, and no i fach with the part thei and govern Hives were how. . C.S. auspera rao months and ake real proposi

02 (Mukamesi) 22 (Mukamesi) nbers (small) le whii Seminar seeks to develop Jerusa programmes for child safety

By Serene Holosa Special to the Jordan Times

orter of line AMMAN — A national seminar cocheted off attended by Her Majesty Queen Noor, opened Tuesday at the Piaza Hotel. The two-day seminar seeks to develop a comprehensive national programme, incorporating and coordinating the efforts of all institutions and organisations engaged in the child safety in the home cam-

The seminar is organised by Noor Al Hussein Foundation's (NHF) health communications oject. This project, launched in 1986 in cooperation with United States Agency for International Development (USAID), is designed to help developing countries increase the impact of child survival programme through the systematic use of improved communication. It also provides assistance in social marketing, mass media pianing, advertising and promotion, behavioural studies, ethnographic research and programme

"This seminar aims at bringing the problem of child safety in the home to the attention of researchers, policy- and decisionmakers as well as parents, families, and others who deal with children," Sima Bahous, director of the health communications projects at NHF said. Bahous underlined ways in which children's injuries can be to "take the danger away from the child rather than tell the child to stay away from danger." "Parents are aware of the problem only when it occurs;

what we have to do is raise the tour of duty in Jordan.

HOME NEWS IN BRIEF

AMMAN (Petra) — Deputy Prime Minister and Foreign Minister

Marwan Al Qasem Tuesday decorated the outgoing Brazilian Ambassador to Jordan Felix Baptista Varia with Jordan's

Independence Medal of the First Order which His Majesty King

Hussein had conferred upon him on the occasion of the end of his

AMMAN (Petra) - The Jordan National Red Crescent Society

(JNRCS) President Ahmad Abu Qoura discussed Tuesday with the trade attacherat the Japanese Embassy in Amman arrangements for a visit which a delegation representing the Japanese Relief Committee will pay to Jordan. Abu Qoura sau the delegation would prepare a study on the Jordanian experiment in extending assistance to evacuees from Iraq and Kuwait and the Chamber of Commerce discusses report

AMMAN (Petra) - The Executive Committee of the Jordanian

Chambers of Commerce Federation held a meeting Tuesday

under the chairmanship of the council's President Mohammad Asfour. The council discussed the council's bureau report which proposed forming a committee to prepare the technical and economic basis for lifting the ban on the importation of trucks and to propose the suitable customs duty on trucks. The committee will comprise representatives of the ministries of interior, finance and industry and trade, Amman Chamber of Commerce and the

AMMAN (J.T.) - The German airline, Lufthansa, will suspend flights to and from Jordan as of Jan. 31 becoming the fifth airline to stop operations in the Kingdom, airline sources said Tuesday. Last week, in a written notice, the Lufthansa office in Amman informed its agents that flights will be discontinued as of Jan. 31, a local travel agent said Tuesday. Lufthansa said their decision was prompted by the "unstable situation in the Middle East," but other factors prevalent before the Gulf crisis also influenced them, according to a foreign airline official. He said the closure decision was also prompted by strong competition, low revenues and high operating cost. "Before the crisis foreign airlines were complaining of the unjustifiably high operating cost, including the handling fees at Amman airport," the official said. "But after the crisis we had to deal with the war risk insurance which added about $20,000-$30,000 to the cost of each flight depending on the

AMMAN (Petra) - Ministry of Public Works Tuesday said

Baqua-Jerash road, starting from Mubis intersection and ending at Jerash would be closed before traffic for eighteen months as of Priday, Dec. 21. Ministry sources said the ministry had completed work on the alternative roads and had installed guiding signs to ensure that traffic goes smoothly and easily on the new roads. The ministry sources said that traffic coming from Irbid to Amman would have to follow Irbid-Nuaimeh intersection, Balaama,

Hashimieh, Khaw intersection, the free zone intersection, Awajan crossroads, Zarqa highway to Amman. Special arrangements will be made for people living within the areas located in the work

WHAT'S GOING ON

The following listings are compiled from monthly bulletins and the daily Arabic press. Readers are advised to verify the listed

EXHIBITIONS

* Exhibition entitled 'L'orient des cafes' at the French Cultural

Art exhibition by Mukarram Haghendoga at the Spanish

 \star Christmas shopping arcades organised by the Noor Al Husselm

Foundation at Hotel Jordan Intercontinental (open 3 - 10 s.m.)

LECTURE

* Lecture, in Arabic, entitled "Water Strategies in Jordan" by Dr. Has Salameh at the Royal Cultural Centre - 6:06 p.m.

time and place with the concerned institutions.

size of the airplane," the official added.

area, the sources noted.

Cultural Centre.

Bagga-jerash road to be closed

Lufthansa haits flights to Amman role of the JNRCS in the relief operations

Abu Qoura, Japanese official hold talks

Outgoing Brazilian envoy honoured prevented by stressing the need awareness of parents and show them ways and practices that would prevent and control children's injuries," Bahous said.

She added that there was a great need to conduct research to determine the size of the problem, gather information on children's injuries at home, and build an integrated data system linking all agencies dealing with these minnies, "We should also try to cract necessary legislation and adopt a national programme that guarantees prevention and control of children's injuries in the home," she added.

The two-day seminar features research and working papers prepared by a group of experts drawn from Jordanian universities, the Ministry of Health and NHF. These experts deal with other aspects of children's environment, including for example the effect of television on children, prevention of injuries and accidents during childhood, health education and protection of children in homes.

Dr. Zivad Al Rifai, a faculty member of the Communications and Journalism Department at Yarmouk University who participated in the seminar, discussed the effects of television on "Children, especially at an early age, are affected by what they see on television, especially violence, anti-social and destructive behaviour and they tend to imitate this sort of behaviour," Rifai said. He added that although not a lot of research on this subject has been done in Jordan "in the United States hundreds of reports prove that if children watch violence they im-

"Cartoons are the most vio-

Lives of 12m children saved, UNICEF report says

AMMAN (J.T.) — The United Nations Children's Fund (UN-ICEF) Wednesday launches the 1991 State of the World's Children Report which outlines a general review of the world's children in terms of health, education, survival, protection and development, and forecasts prospects for a better life for said, adding that on one occasion he interviewed 120 children and asked them to name their favourite cartoon show with the majority saying it was "Tom and Asked what can be done to correct this kind of negative effect on children, Rifai said:

"On the decision-making level, television should adopt a policy, that will take out violent programme." As for parents, Rifai said, they can participate in curbing such a negative effect on their children. "Parents should watch television with their children and express their disapproval of certain behaviour

they see. That will affect the child," he said.

Another participant was Mohammad Ayyeish, a faculty member of the Communications and Journalism Department at Yarmouk University, who based his research on the role of mass media in promoting the safety of children in the home. "The mass media can play a role in two ways. First through regular programmes and second through a communication campaign

approach that is more concentrated," he said, adding that "if a long-term objective is required the first approach works, while for immediate results the second

The seminar, organised by

NHF and USAID, included representatives from ministries of information, health, education, social development, trade and industry in addition to representatives from Jordanian universities and different societies to discuss

AMMAN (J.T.) - The Joint

Jordanian-Chinese Economic

Committee will open meetings in Peking in the last week of December: to discuss means of promoting Jordanian-Chinese trade and economic ties, according to an official statement here.

two-day meeting would focus the volume of goods exchanged by the two countries as well as cooperation in industrial joint ventures, technology and scien-

In addition the committee will discuss means of utilising a $25 million Chinese loan which is to be granted to Jordan, according

It said that the Jordanian side will be led by minister of Planning Khaled Amin Abdullah who will be accompanied by representatives from his own ministry as well as the Natural Resources Authority, the Federation of Jordanian Chambers of Industry and Trade, the Jordan Phosphate Mines Company, and the National Shipping Lines.

The joint committee last held a meeting in Amman in 1985, but in September last year a delegation led by China's foreign minister held a meeting here with the ministry of industry and trade resulting in an agreement on reviving the work of the joint committee and on working out detailed programmes for mutual the ministers' meeting said that a decision was taken to encourage the joint committe to embark on matters related to technical.

health, social and economic Yemeni minister

heads delegation

RAMTHA (Petra) - Yemeni

Higher Education and Scientific Research Minister Ahmad

Salem Al Qadi arrived here at the head of a Yemeni delegation on a week-long official visit to

Jordan for talks with Jordanian officials on higher education and

In a statement to Petra, Al

Qadi said that the delegation's visti to Jordan was aimed at familiarising themselves with

Jordan's experience in the field of higher education and scientific research with a view to benefitting from it. He added that the visit provided a good opportunity for consultation on a number of issues of mumal interest to both countries. The visit will contribute to enhancing brotherly relations linking Iordan with Yemen, the minister

A statement which followed, cooperation.

to Jordan

scientific research.

tific fields.

to the statement.

The statement said that the one will suffice."

and associations.

Jordan,

China

trade

Jerry."

show," Rifai said.

"It is a very violent children in the decade ahead. The report this year announces that the lives of over 12 million children have been saved by the decade-long effort to immunise 80 per cent of the developing world's children.

According to Mehr Khan, director of UNICEF's division of information in New York, this extraordinary achievement, in which the media has played a vital part in almost every country, has also prevented over 1.5 million cases of paralytic polio.

This year's report is about goals set by the World Summit for Children, attended by more than 70 heads of state or government in New York, and how they can be achieved by the year 2000, Khan said in a message launching the 1991 report.

UNICEF Regional Director Richard Reid addresses a press conference Wednesday to re-

The 1991 report is a valuable reference document. In addition to its six chapters on conditions of children worldwide, it inchudes the World Summit for children's declaration and plan of action on child survival, development and protetion, and the United Nations convention on the rights of the child. The convention, which has already been ratified by more than 60 countries, sets out the minimum standard for child protection, curvival and development.

in its review of the condition of children worldwide, the report focuses on the children of the poor and children living under difficult circumstances in the Third World. It also reviews the opportunities available for saving the lives of millions of children who die or are disabled every year as a result of a handful of easily preventable diseases. The report outlines the goals for the 1990s and proposes actions ensuring that such goals are met before the turn of the

Reid told a press hunch Monday that UNICEF would soon publish the findings of a survey conducted in Jordan, organise in cooperation with the Health Ministry, on the effects of the Gulf crisis on children in the Kingdom in terms of health nutrition and future prospects.

He said the survey, which covered 500 households in Jordanian towns and refugee camps in the urban, rural and badia regions, was conducted by UNICEF teams of workers re-

The survey, he said, reveals very disturbing facts about the actual situation concerning the condition of children many with parents who had lost their means

Reid, who urged the media to focus attention on the plight of children, said the UNICEF planned to prepare documentary films, to be showed in Western Nations, to draw attention to the plight of children in this part of

Jordanian women to board 'Peace Ship' on its mission to Iraq and Palestinian women are expected to board "The Peace Ship" wich is heading for Iraq after docking at Aden in Yemen on Dec. 20, according to Dr. Aydah Al Najjar, head of the ship's information committee.

Dr. Najjar, who was speaking upon her seturn to Amman, said. that the ship, which set sail from Algeria, would take on milk and medicine from Yemeni children. to be added to the unspecified quantities of these commodifies already on board. foreign women from Austria. Japan, Italy, the United Kingdom, Sweden, Spain, U.S. and France are making the trip aboard the Peace Ship," Najjar

She said that the ship, which started the voyage on Dec. 1, had been fitted with a closed radio circuit providing informational and cultural material, and the women on board take part in seminars and listen to lectures on the Palestine issue and the Gulf crisis.

According to Dr. Najjar, the peace ship stopped in Tunisia and Libva on its way to Port Sudan after crossing the Suez Canal last Saturday paying a toli of $150,000 to the Egyptian authorities.

She said that the toll charges as well as the milk and medicine donations come as gifts and contributions from Arab countries.

A host of journalists of various nationalities plus three folk troupes from Mauritania, Palestine and Algeria are accompanying the women on their peace

She said that the ship was scheduled to dock at Um Oasr Port in Iraq towards the end of this month.

According to Dr. Najiar. some of the women joining the ship in Aden come from the the occupied Arab territories.

VTC to train Jordanians for jobs performed by foreigners

AMMAN (J.T.) --- The Ministry of Labour's Vocational Training Corporation (VTC) is planning to train people to do jobs now being taken by non-Jordanians in bakeries, leather tanning and ready made clothing industries, according to Awad Obaly, director of VTC's Training Depart-

He said that a survey conducted by the VTC had revealed that a very limited number of non-Jordanians was being employed in the fields of electricity, anto-mechanics and wood work, for which VTC centres had been turning out a lot of skilled young men, and therefore the VTC would turn its attention to training people for jobs now taken by

Obali said that 70 men and women engineers working for the VTC had conducted the survey, which took one month to complete, and covered a wide sector of 7,654 industries and various businesses in Jordan.

He said that the aim of the survey and the subsequent training programme was to try to find employment for the numerous job-seekers. The VTC announced earlier this month that it had made plans to provide 14,000 young men and women with training in 34 different trades and professions in the coming year, up from 10,000 last year, in a bid to help them find jobs.

It said that it was opening training centres to help carry out the programme.

Meanwhile, the Department of Statistics announced Monday that it had conducted a survey of the services sector and its employees in Jordan as well as on the capital invested and the number of people employed in this sector.

According to a department statement, a total of 11,600 services centres are now operating in the country, mostly in the capital, employing altogether 47,022 Jordanian and non-Jordanian workers.

It said that the total capital estimated at JD 216 million.

OIC urges implementation of U.N. resolutions on Palestinians

JEDDAH (Petra) - The Jeddah-based Organisation of Islamic Conference (OIC) Tuesday called on the international community and the five permanent members of the United Nations Security Council to implement the international resolutions, banning the deportation of Palestinians from their homeland and called on them to exercise pressure on Israel to stop its oppressive practices against the Palestinian people.

In a statement issued here, the OIC condemned the oppressive

Israeli measures, including arrests and deportations of

The statement said the deportations most recently of four citizens from the occupied territories was an implementation of the hostile Israeli policy aimed at Judaising the Palestinian land and expelling its original popula-

The statement called for providing protection for the Palestinian people living under the Israeli occupation and for enabling them to enjoy their legitimate rights.

Jordan marks Arab Police Day

AMMAN (Petra) - Director of Public Security Department Ma-jor General Fadel Ali Fheid Tuesday said the public security personnel are proud of His Majesty King Hussein, who spares no effort in supporting the public security forces and enabling it to attain advanced stages, thus preparing it to be the "honest guard of Jordan's security and stability."

Addressing a group of journalists attending a major celebration held by the Public Security Department to mark the Arab Police Day, Fheid said that the PSD personnel were looking forward to seeing King Hussein's efforts bridging the gap among the Arab ranks and bearing fruit.

"The policeman who performs his duties in the various fields deserves the highest appreciation from all of us," Fheid said. He voiced hope that policemen and citizens alike will contime to do their best to achieve stability and to safeguard order and law.

"Never before had the relation between the security men and citizens been based on closer cooperation, confidence and true feelings than it is now,"

Brigadier Noureddin Kheir. assistant director of the Public Security Department for Judicial Affairs, in a statement issued on the occasion said a total of 20,129 crimes of various types were committed in Jordan in 1989, registering 7.1 per cent increase over the previous year.

He added that 1.254 crimes registered last year were committed by non-Jordanians living in the "Despite the increase, crime rates in Jordan are within the reasonable margin, in contrast with international rates," said Kheir in a statement to mark the Arab Police Day

Brig. Mufid Mubaslat, who is assistant director of PSD for Traffic and Aliens Affairs, said that Jordan last year witnessed a total of 18,336 road accidents, registering an increase of 298 accidents over the 1988 figures. A PSD study showed that most of last year's accidents resulted from violations of traffic rules on the roads like wrong overtaking and speeding.

Mubaslat said that the PSD's traffic police this year faced a complicated and heavy task during the influx of evacuees in Jordan. But he said that there was close cooperation among various police departments to help the evacuees' transportation, housing and water and food supply operations go smoothly.

Referring to the drug issue, Brig. Izzeddin Zaza said that although Jordan's central geographical location serves as a ground for trafficking drugs, there is a low rate of drug addicts in the country, estimated at 13 persons for every 10,000 inhabi-

Zaza, who is assistant director of PSD for Anti-Narcotics Affairs, said that his department, established in 1972, was now employing police helicopters to monitor borders with neighbouring Arab states to prevent smnggling operations.

The celebration included military exercises, games, horseriding skills, music and exercises on the use of police dogs in detecting narcotics.

At the end of the celebration Fheid presented awards to a number of retired public security officers and to others who performed distinguished works. Fheid also honoured a number of citizens for their honesty and cooperation with the public

Iragi Red Crescent head says his country does not have strategic supplies of medicine

AMMAN (J.T.) — The current embargo imposed on Iraq has caused the death of hundreds of children mainly due to lack of medicine needed for their treatment, according to Dr. Ameed Khaled Abdul Hamid, head of the Iraqi National Red Crescent Society's International Affairs.

Addressing a press conference with Dr. Ahmad Abu Qoura, president of the Jordan National Red Crescent Society (JNRCS), the Iraqi official said that Iraq did not possess a strategic supply of medicines; it used to import its drugs on annual basis and to receive shipments monthly.

Since Aug. 2, he said, Iraq has received only $5 million worth of medicines when, as a rule, the country used to purchase $300 million worth of drugs annually.

He said that embargo on medicine contradicted the 1949 convention and its protocols which excludes medicines destined to civilians from any sanctions, on any country during neace or war.

According to Dr. Abdul Hamid, the current embargo imosed on Irao led to a halt in programmes that used to provide health protection in Iraq due to shortage of vaccines needed for immunisation prog-

This, he said, has led to the spread of children's diseases while lack of sufficient milk for children has led to malnutrition leading to death in most cases. Iraq concluded deals for the purchase of 164 shipments of milk and medicine. The Iraqi government has paid in full for the shipments before Aug. 2, but these shipments are still frozen as countries from which they are coming refuse to send them to Iraq although U.N. Security Council resolution 666 excludes medicine from sanctions, according to Dr. Abdul Hamid.

He demanded that the world community reexamine the current embargo procedures and appealed to the countries delaying the dispatch of milk and food to speed up delivery to prevent more people from

The head of the International Affairs Department at the Red Cross Society in the Netherlands, who was present at the press conference, said that his society had donated 16.5 tonnes of medicines to the Iraci Red Crescent Society and the shipment would be channelled to Iraq through JNRCS. The Dutch official said he would hold talks with Dr. Abdul Hamid on coordinating humanitarian efforts for the Iraqi people.

JNRCS President Ahmad societies which he accused of being "biased" regarding humanitarian services and assistance for the Iraqi people.

Abu Qoura said that Red Cross and Red Crescent societies are humanitarian groups which should be allowed to act freely and offer their services to mankind in a neutral Abu Qoura announced that the Standing Committee of the Red Cross and Red Crescent societies had decided to send medicines worth 150,000 Swiss francs to Iraq.

In an earlier development Abu Qoura appealed to the United Nations Security Council and international humanitarian bodies to provide protection to the Palestinian people under Israeli rule.

Abu Qoura, who is also president of the International Standing Committee of the Red Cross and Red Crescent, also said an Israeli decision to expel four Palestinian political activists was

He issued the appeal for protection to the International Red Cross and Red Crescent movements, all international bodies and the U.N. Security Council. "Protection of these civilians is needed after all international humanitarian bodies and the Security Council have failed to force Israel to accept the Fourth Geneva Convention." Abu Ooura said

He said the move to expel the four Palestinians from the occu-Gaza Strin convention, which deals with treatment of civilians during wartime or under occupation.

Israel, invoking its deportation policy for the first time in 16 months; said last Saturday it would expel four Palestinians because they belong to the Muslim fundamentalist movement Hamas, a key player in the three-year-old Palestinian up-

IPPNW leaves Amman for Baghdad on peace mission

representing the International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War (IPPNW), currently on a visit to Jordan, leaves for Baghdad Wednesday on a peace mission during which they are expected to meet with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and the Iraqi Medical Association.

Addressing some 180 members of the Jordanian medical community during a meeting held at the Professional Association Complex Tuesday, Bernard Lown, co-president and founder of the IPPNW, said their peace missions aimed at sharing information on the devastating medical consequences which would result if war broke out and at promoting a peaceful solution to the Gulf crisis as "the only viable alternative to massive and unprecedented suffer-

He described the medical and environmental consequences that would affect the entire region and the whole world if war broke out in the region. He informed the audience on the history of the IPPNW and on how doctors from the Soviet Union and the United States had built a new movement and formulated a new manner of thinking that were guiding world leaders at the height of the cold war.

"This new manner of thinking must be widely promoted in the Middle East and in the West if we are to avert a catastrophic war that will have civilians and children as the majority of casualties should war break out," Lown said.

Lown is accompanied by the IPPNW Vice President in Europe Ulrich Gottstein, the IPPNW Secretary John Pastore, IPPNW leader and member of the Congress of Peoples' Deputies in the Soviet Union Sergei Kolisnikov and William Monning, an attorney and executive director of IPPNW from Boston,

The delegation is being hosted by the Jordanian Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War (JPPNW) which is headed by Dr. Nabih Muammar. Monday the delegation members were received by Deputy Prime Minister and Foreign Minister Marwan Al Qasem and by Deputy Regional Director of the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) Nigel Fisher.

In addition to conveying a peace message, the delegation is compiling information on the capacity of the medical establishments in the region to handle the anticipated high numbers of casualties and burn victims in the

ESCWA helps Jordan's National Population Council

AMMAN (Petra) - The Regional Office of the Economic and Social Commission of West-ern Asia (ESCWA), now in Amman following its move from Baghdad, is extending technical assistance to the Jordanian National Population Council in developing a number of pro-

Abdul Jaber. The U.N. officials said experts from the office were helping in a number of projects being carried out in Oman, Yemen and

jects, according to ESCWA

Secretary General Tayseer

In Jordan, ESCWA will carry out a project aimed at protecting the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) and the Jordanian government. The project will serve as a case study, and aims at determining how the environmental factors can be incorporated in the development plans being implemented in Jordan.

Areas to be examined in the course of implementing the project include industry, agriculture and water pollution. In Oman an ESCWA expert is assisting the development council in undertaking an assessment of studies on alternative energy sources. Another expert environment in cooperation with is assisting the Health and Telecommunication ministries in data processing and is making proposals for improving performance of workers.

In Yemen an expert from the commission is assisting in development of scientific and technical capacities of Sanaa and Aden Universities,

In Egypt an expert is helping with a study aimed at upgrading the performance of the transport and telecommunication sector, and in Bahrain an expert will be provided in response to a reassist in preparing new statistical tables on gross national product.

w (large) (CI) (Ereen)

Jordan Times

Chairman of the Board of Directors:

MAHMOUD AL KAYED

Director General: MOHAMMAD AMAD

Editor-in-Chief:

GEORGE S. HAWATMEH

Editorial and advertising offices:

Jordan Press Foundation, University Road, P.O. Box 6710, Amman, Jordan.

Telephones: 667171/6, 670141-4 Telex: 21497 ALRAI JO

Facsimile: 661242

The Jordan Times is published daily except Fridays. Subscription and advertising rates are available from the Jordan Times advertising department.

Peace's the answer

MUCH HOPE has been pinned on the proposed U.S.-Iraqi talks at a time when Washington intended to use such talks just to deliver an ultimatum to Baghdad: Withdraw from Kuwait unconditionally or face war. Since the object of the dialogue, according to Washington, is simply to serve Baghdad with the U.N. Security Council Resolution 678, one wonders why the U.S. took it upon itself to act on behalf of the council without any specific mandate from it. In this context it would be more prudent to have other members of the council involved in such limited discussions which also include the non-permanent members if this is the sole purpose of them. Paris, Moscow, Sanaa, Bogota and other capitals represented in the council are equally involved in the process of serving the sentence on Iraq if that is all that is intended in the envisaged Washington-Baghdad contacts. The case would be of course different if U.S. President George Bush seeks to engage Iraqi President Saddam Hussein in genuine and profound dialogue. There is no doubt that the ongoing difficulty associated with arranging meetings between the two sides stems primarily from the fact that Washington is knocking at Baghdad's door with threats and bellicose statements that aim to preempt the results of the projected talks. Had the White House abstained from uttering belligerent declarations on the eve of the Bush-Aziz talks and instead made conciliatory statements, the issue of determining the date for the visit of the U.S. secretary of state to Baghdad would have never posed a problem in the first place. In the light of the complications that ensued, however, it is imperative that the other members of the council, notably the permanent ones, intervene immediately and offer their good offices with a view to arrive at an acceptable date for the potentially promising talks. No one wishes to lecture the council on how to approach its dialogue with Iraq but it would be wise to caution against embarking on it with threats and warnings. Such approaches have gotten the world nowhere thus far and it is high time that the international community especially the superpowers — adopted a more imaginative attitude towards Iraq. Short of war, which one gathers the entire human race would rather not resort to, the only alternative left to dislodge Iraq from Kuwait peacefully is to engage it into meaningful negotiations on the basis of the 12 resolutions and by acting and talking in a more conciliatory manner. It is perplexing that other permanent members of the Security Council are taking a back seat on the matter and have left the responsibility to Washington to get Iraq into a talking mood. There is no excuse for the other capitals to act as mere spectators when the stakes are so high and far-reaching. This is not time for low profile diplomacy and the rest of the countries with sufficient clout with Iraq and the other major players in the Gulf crisis are called upon to pitch in their efforts in order to save the region from disastrous consequences. The Jan. 15 deadline prescribed by the council is not so sacrosanct that it cannot be extended should there be signs that a peaceful way out is in the horizon. Once the process of peace gains a foothold, there will be opportunity for everyone to get satisfactory results from it. War will be in nobody's interest.

ARABIC PRESS COMMENTARIES

Al Ra'i daily Tuesday quoted a former American Defence Secretary Zbignew Brezenski as urging the U.S. administration to refrain from involving the United States in a devastating war which could only offer ser. . . . o others. The paper said that one of these countries is Kuwait or rather the ousted emir and his family who are advocating war and urging the United States to help him to return to power. The paper said that Israel has a great interest in such a war in which it hopes that the Iraqi military power will be destroyed. There have been voices in the United States like that of Defence Secretary Dick Cheney who were calling for the destruction of Iraq's military power which Cheney said that posed a threat to Israel, the paper noted. Of course the Zionist lobby in the United States spares no moment and loses no chance in instigating the U.S. administration to beat the drums of war and not to accept the idea of settling the Gulf crisis by a peaceful means, the paper noted. It said that for its part, Britain also wants a war to see the old regime reinstated in view of the vast funds it has deposited in British banks and businesses. The paper said that Britain, Israel and the emir of Kuwait are not concerned in the least about what would happen to the Gulf region, its people, and its economy in the event of war breaking out. All they want to achieve, the paper said, is their own selfish interest. It called on the U.S. administration to opt for reason and for logic and not to go into war for which only the American people will secretary general of the Jordanian Communist Party for his anti-Arab views published on Nov. 30 in the Al Khaleej newspaper, and says that these views provoke indignation, sadness and anger in the hearts of the Arab people. Fahed Al Fanek refers to a number of points in Ziadin's statements especially his condemnation of Iraq's takeover of Kuwait, thus choosing to stand against the general political trend in Jordan. In his statement Ziadin compares Iraq with Israel, alleging that the Iraqi troops looted Kuwaiti hospitals and schools, and that the take over of Kuwait was a good service for the Americans and their interests in the Gulf. Furthermore, says the writer, the head of the Communist Party refuses to link the Gulf crisis with the Palestine problem, thus supporting the views of the Americans, the Israelis and their allies in the region. Ziadin reveals that Arab Communist parties met in Damascus shortly after Iraq's takeover of Kuwait and denounced the move, as if he is boasting of such an attitude on the part of the Communists, says the writer. What is more, he adds, Zładin attacked Jordanian newspaper columnists who maintain a campaign against the presence of foreign forces in the Gulf, according to Fanek.

A columnist in Al Ra'l daily bitterly criticises Yaqoub Ziadin, the Former U.S. officials urge peaceful resolution in Gulf

By Berta Gomez

WASHINGTON — Richard Murphy, former assistant secretary of state for North Africa, Near East and South Asia affairs and ambassador to Syria and Saudi Arabia, said Dec. 17 that a war in the Middle East would inevitably result in "negative although unpredictable consequences' for American interests in the

Murphy made his assessment during a hearing before the House of Representatives Armed Services Committee, which also heard testimony from Hermann Eilts, former ILS, ambassador to Saudi Arabia and Egypt, and Samuel Lewis, former U.S. ambassador to Israel.

Noting that his own "strong preference" would be a peaceful resolution of the current crisis, Murphy acknowledged that if Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein "is determined never to pull his forces out of all of Kuwait, then the prospects for armed conflict... are indeed

Murphy said that while military action would be greeted with an "immediate sigh of relief" from Kuwait, from most members of the Gulf Cooperation Council and from Israel, the long-term consequences would be complicated.

He warned that the regional balance of power would shift. Iran "would ipso facto become more powerful regionally." Syria would be in danger of experiencing internal dissent, and any military participation on the part of Israel "could create substantial chaos in Jordan," Murphy said.

Another possible consequence would be a strengthening of anti-U.S. sentiments within the Arab World. "If we destroy the Iraqi military machine... (and) the Arab-Israeli problem continues to the United States would be open to the "inevitable allegation that our war against Iraq was at the behest of Israel." The reactivation of the Arab-Israeli peace process is thus essential, Murphy said. He told the panel that even if the crisis is resolved peacefully, a United Nations peacekeeping force "should definitely be considered as part of the package of arrangements to contain Iraq and preserve the peace." Similarly, Hermann Eilts said the idea of a long-term U.S. military presence in the region was unwise, and that any foreign "protection" forces could more easily be maintained under the umbrella of the United Nations or the Arab League. Eilts also cautioned against what he called exaggerated expectations of post-crisis changes in the Arab World." He noted that there is "an endemic stasis in much of the Middle East area" and that the regional and personality differences that have hampered real Arab cooperation will continue. Those differences, he said, "have been and remain endemic." At the solved, it would be advisable to install some kind of "military containment structure," possibly in Kuwait. In his view, bowever, such a force ought to include the United States.

Lewis said the worst possible outcome of present crisis would be a long, protracted war. He stressed, however, that the "next worse" scenario would be a diplomatic solution that Saddam Hussein could de-same time, he said that in the aftermath of armed conflict, it would be necessary to ensure that Iraq preserves some of its military capability in order to maintain a balance between Iraq and Syria. A severely weakened Iraq, Eilts said. could lead Iran to invade Iraq's southern region.

'Murphy said that while military action would be greeted with an "immediate sigh of relief" from Kuwait, from most members of the Gulf Cooperation Council and from Israel, the long-term consequences would be complicated.'

Samuel Lewis agreed with Eilts and Murphy that regardpict as a victory. Such an outcome would be "disastrous for the United States and the West," Lewis told the panel. Not only would U.S. allies in the region drift towards Saddam Hussein, but it would severely affect plans for a major post-Cold War realignment. "This crisis is not just about the Gulf... it is important for the prospect of moving towards... a new international order," he said. Nevertheless, Lewis said, he thinks there is a "good chance" of forcing Iraq's withdrawal from Kuwait by maintaining the international embargo, and backing it up with a "credible threat" of military action. He said he would be in favour of waiting until autumn of 1991 to let the sanctions take effect. Lewis added that Congress "can enhance the possibility that Saddam Hussein gets the right message" by passing a resolu-tion authorising the use of force against Iraq. Committee Chairman Les Aspin, responding that lawmakers are overwhelmingly opposed to giving Bush "a blank check to use force," said that Congress would vote "only when the president comes up with specific plan."

Asked by Republican Bill Dickinson about the prospects for an internal overthrow of Saddam Hussein, Eilts pointed out that although there are several known Iraqi dissident groups, "I'm not at all impress-ed that they have any fol-

Similarly, Murphy said the "cult of personality" is so strong in Saddam Hussein's Iraq that no other potential leaders have had the chance to

All three former officials agreed that even if Saddam Hussein were to withdraw his forces from Kuwait, it would be necessary to maintain the sanctions against him to force the dismanting of his chemical, biological and nuclear weapons programmes, and to diminish his conventional military forces.

However, Lewis suggested that it might be possible to maintain only the arms embargo. He said he was very sceptical about the possibility of maintaining a total embargo against Iraq, particularly of its

Representative Patricia Schroeder, a Democrat from Colorado, expressed dismay that other Arab states were not more forthcoming with their own troops. Eilts suggested that one reason for their unwillingness to commit more troops may be the fact that Arabs "remain very disunited" even during this crisis. "There is a wide spread Arab view," he said, "that the Kuwaitis got what they deserved."

Murphy and Lewis agreed that Arab states should have assumed a greater role in the military deployment. "The coalition," said Lewis, "is important, but thin." (USIS).

Searching for peace is 'not that easy'

By Jonathan Wright Reuter

TUNIS — The search for an "Arab solution" to the Gulf crisis, as favoured by Iraq and its sympathisers, has suffered a possibly mortal blow in the response to a peace mission by Algerian President Chadli Benjedid.

Chadli's visits to Jordan, Iraq, Iran, Oman, Syria, Lebanon and to Egypt had raised hopes among Iraq's friends that Arab diplomacy might avert a military showdown between Iraq and the United States over the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait.

Iraq, Jordan, Yemen, Sudan. Tunisia and the Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) have said the problem of Kuwait is wholly Arab and should be settled without intervention from U.S. and other Western forces sent to the Gulf since August.

But in Damascus on Sunday. Chadli and Syrian President Hafez Al Assad said they recognised that the possibility of a wholly Arab solution had faded.

They said they wanted a "peaceful settlement through Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait and the restoration of the Kuwait government." The United States and its allies, through a series of U.N. resolutions, have set the same terms for a Algeria, with long experience of mediating in Arab disputes and widely seen as the Arab state most likely to pull off a diplomatic coup in the Gulf, had already played down Chadli's mission, apparently to prevent unrealistic expectations.

"At this moment, there is neither an initiative nor an Algerian plan (for the Gulf) and the sole Algerian objective is to strengthen... any peace process," the state news agency APS said on Saturday night, would also deeply upset the Algerians, who pride themselves on their neutrality and their easy access to all Arab leaders. One reporter travelling with President Chadli said Saudi Arabia had lost its ability to decide independently in favour of dialogue with other Arabs because of the presence of U.S. troops and a Kuwaiti government-in-

The Kuwaiti government beheves an Arab solution would end up as a compromise rewar-

'Chadli's mission, despite its modest objectives, is the boldest by an Arab leader since King Hussein of Jordan toured the Arab World in the early days of the cri-quoting authorised sources. Saudi Arabia, central to the conflict as the main launching-pad for any U.S. attack on Iraq after a United Nations deadline for withdrawal from Kuwait by Jan. 15, says no date has been set for any visit by Chadli to the

A definitive Saudi rebuff

Arab diplomats said that unless Saudi Arabia agreed to receive him it was hard to see how, he could set in motion the Arab-Arab dialogue which Iraq's friends are hoping for.

ding Iraq for its invasion, either by ceding Kuwaiti territory or installing pro-Iraqi rulers. Chadli's mission, despite its modest objectives, is the boldest by an Arab leader since His Majesty King Hussein of Jordan toured the Arab World in the early days of the crisis. Since then both Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and King Hassan of Morocco have proposed Arab summits to avert war. Their proposals have fallen on stony ground because the two

Arab camps — Iraq on one side, Egypt. Saudi Arabia and the small Gulf states on the other set incompatible conditions for a successful meeting.

Iraq says the summit should undo the work of the Cairo summit on Aug. 10 which condemned the invasion of Kuwait and called for unconditional withdrawal. The anti-Iraqi group says any Arab solution must be based on the Cairo decisions.

Libyan leader Mnammar Qadhafi also tried and failed to bring Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and King Fahd of Saudi Arabia together for peace talks.

The PLO, the most vociferous announced a series of mediation plans but it has little contact with the Gulf states because of its association with the Iraqi posi-

Arab newspapers, especially in pro-Iraqi countries, repeatedly speculate that intermediaries are trying to arrange meetings at a lower level between the main Arab protagonists.

But the pro-Kuwait coalition remains sceptical of the value of meetings unless Iraq promises to withdraw from Kuwait.

"There's a tendency for Iraq's friends to get carried away with wishful thinking, to imagine that all you have to do is bring people together and talk it out. It's not that easy," said and Arab ambassador in Tunis.

United States of Europe remains a distant dream

By Andres Wolberg-Stok from Kuwait, lifted a joint ban Reuter

most ambitious shake-up ever —

"It is evident that this is just a ferences (IGCS) launched by the one voice.

central bank, the equivalent of a man said. foreign ministry, an embryo defor goods, services and capital which is due to be in place by

This may fall far short of the tries' votes according to their federalists' dream of a United States of Europe as espoused by German Chancelior Helmut Kohl, but it would be a long way from the community's shape at birth as a six-country trading bloc in 1957.

As shown at the summit, the 12 member states already act as one in many aspects of foreign on new investments in South Africa, pledged further assist, ROMA - Twenty-three after its ance for Lebanon, criticised birth in Rome, the European Israel's treatment of Palesti-Community has embarked on its mians, called for new links with Latin America and deplored but a United States of Europe stalemate in talks to shape world remains only a distant vision. trade in the 21st century. One of the aims of the IGC on first step," Italian Foreign Minis- so-called political union is to ter Gianni de Michelis said after develop a common foreign and the 12 community leaders security policy which, while letopened months of negotiations ting member states take indion Saturday to broaden the EC vidual action in fields where they treaty to a host of new areas., have traditional interests, would Two Inter-governmental Con- make the bloc itself speak with

EC summit could produce some One of the most debated of the trappings of a federal points in the summit was structure by the end of the cen- whether foreign and security matters should be decided by If all agree, this could include unanimity, as is now the case, or

The IGC guidelines set at the fence role and European summit say broad directions citizenship in the single market should be drafted by consensus. but that specific policies should then be decided by a qualified majority, which weighs coun-,

> Despite the objections of smaller members who fear political dominance by big neighbours, the decision-making core for foreign and security policy will be the European council made up of the EC leaders. The defence role, summit guidelines say, could emerge gradually but should respect and They agreed to provide even strengthen existing links in emergency aid for the Soviet the 16-country U.S.-led Western Union, warned Iraq to withdraw military body, NATO.

Islamist strength in Algeria is undermined by division

By Philip Shehadi Reuter

ALGIERS - The creation of a moderate fundamentalist party in Algeria has deepened splits in the powerful Islamic movement as it gears up for general elections next year.

The Movement for Islamic Society, known by its Arabic initials Hamas, is reshaping Algeria's political landscape months before the first multiparty parliamentary poll since independence in 1962.

Hamas, taking the same acronym as the underground group involved in the revolt against Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip, is courting both liberals and disenchanted backers of the dominant Islamic Salvation Front (FIS) that won an upset victory in local elections last June. Its 48-year-old leader. Sheikh Mahfoud Nahnah. drew more than 15,000 people to a rally on Dec. 6 when he announced the formation of Hamas, an outgrowth of his Irshad Wal Islah (Orientation and Reform) Association, founded in 1988.

Only days before another young religious leader in the eastern city of Constantine, Sheikh Abdullah Djaballah, won legal status for a third major fundamentalist party, the Islamic Renaissance Move-

Some analysts say the fundamentalist parties are bound to unite eventually and their multiplication will only help them win power by expanding their appeal and offering new fundamentalist options to those unhappy with the FIS.

But another scenario is alarming members of all three camps — the possibility that divisions may deepend, alienating voters and even leading to bloody conflict.

FIS President Abbasi Madani bas called Nahnah's initiative a "stab in the back" and many FIS activists are convinced Nahnah, given wide and largely favourable coverage in the state media, is part of a government plot to divide

"People may say that if the Islamists are now fighting among themselves what will they do when they reach power? But indications are we have not reached the danger point," said Mohamed Bouslimani, vice-president of the Irshad Association.

Islamic Salvation Front leader Abbasi Madani

Nahnah was pummelled with shoes — a supreme Muslim insult — after a prayer meeting last week in the central city of Medea by FIS supporters who also took him to task outside a mosque in Algiers a few days

"Some youths cannot accept differences of opinion. They see us standing against the expansion of the FIS which is wrong. But there have been calls for unity from many mosques which we hope will mod-erate the (FIS) radicals," Boustimani told Reuters. Nahnah's appeal for a more gradual approach to the con-struction of an Islamic state, his clear commitment to democratic change and bid to woo liberals now outside the Islamic movement have already won a wide following.

"We must not fall into the same trap as we did during 27 years of one-party rule," said Bouslimani.

"A diversity of Islamic parties gives everyone a chance to identify with a party... the common goal is to return this nation to Islam, but the means to achieve that goal may Bouslimani said his group planned a joint meeting with liberals at the end of January or early February in a bid to cast the Islamic net wider.

This approach is anathema to FIS radicals who consider themselves engaged in a jihad (holy war) against non-be-

The FIS has rebuffed Nahnah's appeal for an Islamic alliance with common candidates in next year's elections, insisting it will fight its elector al battle alone. Boushmani said he continued to hope an alliance could be sealed with the FIS but in the meantime Hamas would explore other possible alliances with independents and pro-democracy parties that have mushroomed in the new democratic climate.

"We believe in moderation, in dialogue. That was the approach of the Prophet (Mohammad). There are democrats close to the Islamic doctrine. There are common denominators. In politics one should play with several cards. not just one."

The FIS won four million votes last June but it has been hurt by its failure to make headway in overcoming in-tractable local problems in the hundreds of towns and cities it now runs.

Bouslimani said some over zealous FIS mayors had made mistakes, rushing too fast to implement Islamic moral principles and setting the wrong priorities. But he said Hamas shared the FIS goal of bringing. Algerian life and culture into line with Islamic values.

Crown Prince

(Continued from page 1)

confrontational course.

"I don't think James Baker has any objection to the Iraqis talking to the Europeans but what are they going to talk about? I'd like to see those talks take place. And two things: ves. there is a readiness effectively to address that issue and if the Palestine issue can be addressed on its own merits then at least we can talk round that question of the inter-relation between the two issues."

In reply to a question how close the region was to war, the Crown Prince said:

We are talking about the possibility of famine in many parts of the wider Middle East region. We are talking about economic and ecological disaster and although the international community has just concluded a conventional force reduction agreement we cannot talk about even that, let alone weapons of mass destruction as part of a

"U.N. resolutions do not talk about attacking Iraq. They talk about getting Iraq out of Kuwait. And that is what we would like to see. We'd like to see a process start. We have no room for optimism as things

What role would Jordan play in the event of a war, he said: We were told by CIA (Central Intelligence Agency) Director (William) Webster and by General (Norman) Schwarzkopf (the commander of the U.S. force in Saudi Arabia) that the war would last anything up to six months, it would be a long and protracted bloody affair. Jordan of course will be subjected demographically to a movement of more than a million evacuees from the Gulf. God knows what is going to happen in the occupied territories, and whether in some stage Israel may be involved. Our role will be on the receiving end of a great deal of devastation both in human terms and indeed in weapon terms.

'Jordan will stand up for its sovereignty and defend itself."

Budget (Continued from page 1)

They also called for the issuance of interest-free Islamic bonds, the provision of financial facilities for Islamic banks, the extension of more loans to farmers, the enactment of a zakat (alm) law and negotiations with Arab and Islamic financial institutions to urge them to invest in the country. Yousef Khasawneh, a deputy from Irbid, presented the Brotherhood's position to the House.

Citing the Financial Committee's report that put the Kingdom's servicing of debts at 38.9 per cent of total exports, the Brotherhood called for halting borrowing from abroad and the commencement of the building of an Islamic economy.

They urged the government to include autonomous government institutions' budget in the main budget in accordance to the Constitution that stipulates that all public expenditure should be approved by Parliament.

The Brotherhood reviewed all fields of government activity and urged the government to enact reforms based on Islamic Sharia.

Going along with the Finance Committee's recommendations. the Brotherhood called for increasing the numerical strength of the Armed Forces with 'young people who believe in God and are ready to sacrifice and who long for martyrdom."

Reading a statement on behalf of the 13-member National Bloc, Deputy Suleiman Arar (Ma'an) noted that the 1991 budget comes at a time when Jordan and the whole region are entering into a crucial phase.

"In light of these circumstances, there is no way for us but to depend on our own resources to get out of the crisis," he said.

The bloc stressed that Jordan, which has only limited resources, should not burden its budget with extra commitments. The bloc also called for reforms in the fields of agriculture, public administration, industry and employment. They called on the government to allow public shareholding companies to allocate 10 per cent of their profits to be invested in new projects. They also called for army conscripts to be trained for six months only after which they should be employed in Jordanian institutions for reduced Deputy Fuad Khalafat, a Brotherhood deputy from Tafilah, earlier listed a number of alleged violations by Jordan Television and Radio. He said that spending at JTV and Jordan Radio was unconstitutional because it did not fall under the control of the Ministry of Finance and the Audit Bureau.

He cited a number of cases in which he said official media institutions violated the laws. These included the employment by the Jordan News Agency (Petra) of foreign nationals to edit its news bulletins.

Khalafat criticised the Jordan Information Bureau in Washington that he said costs JD 180,000 annually. The bureau, he said, is "run by a computer engineer," one-time Jordan Times columnist Dr. Marwan Al

Iraqi stand (Continued from page 1)

Baker said earlier Tuesday he had no problem with a European meeting with Aziz.

Baker, speaking at a news conference after a two-day meeting of foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO) in Belgium, said: "We support... any diplomatic efforts that might result in a peaceful solution."

"The one thing we do discourage are discordant messages, mixed messages or mixed sig-

The Bush-Aziz talks were scrubbed over differences on the timing of a subsequent trip to Baghdad by Baker.

Saddam has sought to hold the meeting Jan. 12, which Bush says is too close to the U.N. deadline for Iraq to quit Kuwait or face possible military action. Bush has said Iraq's position on the issue signals its lack of willinguess to leave Kuwait as the coalition lined up against it in-

Baker said he thinks Iraq might announce a partial pullout just before the Jan. 15 deadline contained in the U.N. resolu-

"We need to anticipate Saddam's possible moves, be prepared for a partial withdrawal ploy and coordinate closely our responses," Baker said.

Some officials have said Iraq is willing to abandon part of Kuwait in return for the Kuwaiti section of a border-straddling oil

CROWN

INT'L EST.

packing, shipping,

forwarding, storaging,

clearing, door-to-door

Tel: 664890, Fex: 690852

Th: 22295 BESMCO JO P.O. Box 926487

amman Jordan

field and two uninhabited islands its oil exports,

In his comments to Turkish directives from them. If Bush is to repeat the U.N. resolutions to us, then there's no point in our going there."

'Any Iraqi concession on Kuwait is out of the question before Palestmian problem is solved. The Kuwait issue should be forgotten till the Palestinian issue is solved.

Those calling for respect to international law and U.N. decision should, without doublestandards, first respect this (Palestinian) problem which has been left pending for 23 years,"

Saddam urged Turkey to press Washington for a peaceful solution to the Gulf crisis.

16 wounded (Continued from page 1)

it going ahead with the latest Earlier Tuesday, the council again postponed voting on a resolution aimed at protecting Palestinians in the occupied territories and deploring the planned expulsions of the four Gaza Strip residents. Earlier Tuesday the Security Council postponed for at least the seventh time a vote on a proposed resolution deploring Israel's expulsion of Palestinians from the occupied territories. The United States, which has threatened to veto any resolution linking the Palestinians to a Middle East conference or assailing Israel too harshly, agreed to support a proposal carefully criticising it ally.

After hours of consultation that lasted into early Tuesday, the next meeting was scheduled for 1530 GMT Wednesday but no one was sure if the vote, delayed for two weeks, would take place.

The main stumbling block was a reference to a Middle East peace conference which Israel rejects. Washington also opposes it as a concession to Iraq which has demanded any Gulf crisis solution be linked to ending the Arab-Israeli conflict.

But diplomats reported tentative agreement between the United States and the resolution's original sponsors — Colombia, Cuba, Malaysia and Yemen to include the conference in a non-binding presidential statement along with a reference to it in the resolution.

They said the co-sponsors were still resisting a U.S. proposal the presidential statement explicitly deny any linkage be tween the Palestinian issue and the Gulf crisis.

Should no compromise be reached, diplomats said the cosponsors might press for a vote on their draft, which Washington is likely to veto.

The United States is anxious not to use its veto for fear of alienating the Arab members of the alliance it has fashioned to confront Iraq.
Council President Abdullah

Saleh Al Ashtal told reporters he was not certain which of several amended resolutions might be put to a vote Wednesday. He said he did not know whether various Western and non-aligned drafts could be reconciled.

Israel's latest expulsion order against Palestinians has fuelled efforts in the Security Council to enhance the safety of Palestinians in the occupied territories.

in the Gulf that would improve Iraq's access to the waterway for In his comments to Turkish television, Saddam said: "We do not go to the United States to get directives from them. If Bush in democracy and econo mic recovery

By Alina Guerrero The Associated Press

PANAMA CITY, Panama — A year after the U.S. invasion. Panama is struggling to achieve democracy, a fair justice system and economic stability.

Demilitarisation is an important element in all three. Early in December, retired Col. Eduardo Herrera mounted what appeared to be a coup attempt with only a handful of officers, and the government asked American troops to help quell it. Physical signs of the Dec. 20 invasion are gone but much remains to be done. There are indications of civilian impatience and of discontent in the security

A recent poll by the newspaper La Prensa found that the number of people who thought the government was promoting true democracy had dwindled only 29 per cent of those questioned thought it was, down from 11 per cent in August. Forty-two per cent said the government had made no achievements, while 19 per cent named the government's main achievement as democratisation.

Some businessmen fear the constant squabbling among parties in President Guillermo Endara's governing coalition will create an image of instability, scaring away foreign credit and

With followers of ousted leader Manuel Antonio Noriega discredited, the only political opposition comes from within the coalition. Both vice presidents have an eye on the presidency in 1991.

Vice President Ricardo Arias Calderon said the coalition's main purpose was "to conduct the country from conditions that prevailed under the dictatorship to those which must prevail in a democracy.

Endara's government, installed hours after the invasion, began a study of legal reform immediately, but still has not proposed changes in the constitution.

"We need to modify the constitution, mainly to ban all armies and define police services constitutionally and legally, Arias Calderon said. Since the invasion ousted

Gen. Noriega, the military budget has fallen from $150 million à year to $30 million, which finances a 13,000-member police force with greatly reduced authority and duties.

Most of Noriega's top officers have been retired and 15 remain in a high-security prison on various charges. Government officials hope the resulting vacuum will attract professionals to the new force and increase loyalty among junior ranks.

Panama no longer sends young men to foreign military schools military, training.

Civilian ag encies now control many service s once handled by Noriega's l Panama defence forces. The 1st meral faces charges of drug traffic king in Miami and is accused in Panama of crimes that include a murder, drug trafficking, fra:ud and money laundering. Thousand's of Panamanians were detained after the invasion, but most are free, many on bond. The jiu stice system has a backlog of th ousands of cases. and many mily never come to Attorney (Jeneral Rogelio Cruz said his office had been flooded with 3: 5,000 formal complaints, marıy against Noriega and his crorie s, and most still are pending. Charges of political favouritism have errier ged. The Christian Democrate, vehement foes of Noriega now in the governing coalition, issue d a statement in late November saying:

"We have libe an observing with some concern ti se lack of judicial process comme cted with some prominent No riega followers, civilian and m ilitary, who are free on dubio us grounds, as well as those free on bail."

Panama, a nation of about 2 million people h as a debt of $6.2 billion and owes back interest of nearly $1 billion. It is one of the highest per cap tia debts in the

The government has pledged to "put right its financial administration and public finances, normalise relations with creditors and regain credit."

Economic growth since the invasion has beer 1 reported at 5.6 per cent, and Par sama is trying to make its debt ou trent by paying $510 million in it sterest Noriega skipped in 1987- 1989.

Of this, $130 m illion will come from U.S. aid and I a like amount from Asian and E uropean donations. Panama w/i l pay $130 million and the rema ining $150 million will come fire in a U.S. government loan.

Endara inherit;e d an economic nightmare.

Unemployment was estimated at 35 per cent — i t is now about 25 - and product ion had fallen 20 per cent in nexent years because of corruption and a U.S. trade embargo. Looting and dan tage from the invasion were est in nated to total hundreds of millions of dollars, hardly any of it is or wered because of war clauses in in surance poli-"This is an unfillanced and indebted society," said former President Nicolas A rdito Barletta, an economist. 1-Ie: said economic revival depends "on our actions and on a sta ble political system and an econ omic policy

Homer's tale of revenge executions were no myth

By Stephen Weeks Renter

ELEFTHERNA, Crete — One of the goriest scenes in Homer's Iliad, when Achilles slaughters 12 Trojans besides a funeral pyre, was a real practice among some ancient Greeks, according to new archaeological evidence. A find late this year on Crete lends further weight to the belief that Homer, thought to be composing in the 8th-century before Christ, was chronicling real customs and rituals, not just spinning colourful yarns.

"For the first time we have found absolute archaeological evidence confirming the custom described by Homer in the 23rd book of the Iliad," said Nikos Stambolidis, associate professor of archaeology at Crete Uni-

Achilles, greatest of the Greek warriors in the Trojan War, swears over his slain boyhood friend Patroclus: "Before your funeral pyre I'll cut the throats of twelve glorious children of the Trojans, such is my murdering fury at your death."

He then builds a wooden pyre, covers it with offerings and slaughters his young Trojan captives in a revenge execution.

Homer's Iliad describes a united the Greek communities spread throughout the Aegean in the late bronze age — the siege of Troy around 1200 BC. Thought by many to be the finest epic poem ever, it tells of a feud between Achilles and the great military campaign which who stole one of his hand-In anger Achilles, the son of a goddess, refuses to fight and Greek commander Agamennon, returns to battle only when Patroches is killed by the Trojan hero Hector

Stambolidis, excavating among 10th to 7th century BC pyres in a cemetery in the foothills of Mount Ida in central Crete, found the skeleton of a man whose arms were bound behind him and his throat cut so violently that he was decapitated.

Evidence of human sacrifice has been found in the ancient civilizations of the east Mediterranean but this is the first discovery which matches Homer's ritual execution besides

We found a slaughtered man, about 30 to 40 years old, next to a funeral pyre," Stambolidis said during a recent walk among the terraced hillside vineyards and olive groves near the site. "His head is missing, there is a broken knife next to the neck and a whet-stone to sharpen the executioner's blade," he said.

Stambolidis believes a prominent citizen or noble from the ancient city of Eleftherna was cremated on the pyre and dates his find to 725-700 BC, meaning the cemetery killing happened around the time Homer composed the Iliad.

A compelling point for Stambolidis in the 2,700-year-old puzzle is that so far no head has been found. He believes it was burned on the pyre, which he will excavate next summer.

He points to suggestions in the Iliad that Achilles, after killing Hector in battle, burned the sead of the Trojan hero on Patroclus's pyre.

On one point Stambolidis is categorical: "the executed man... was an offering at the pyre along with an ox, some sheep, perfume jars and fruit." The sleuth knows the wind blew from the south on the day of the execution because of how the bones have been singed. He knows it was August or September because laboratory tests show the grapes burnt among the offerings were fresh.

But he cannot say whether the executed man was a criminal, a prisoner of war or an innocent victim like Achilles' Trojans. slaughtered to appease the "murdering fury" of someone still living.

"I believe he was a prisoner of war who killed the person cremated on the pyre but we'll never know for sure," he said.

Uncertainty and controversy surround the early history of the Greek world in the eastern Mediterranean. Disputes are also fierce over Homer and his epic poems the Iliad and the Scholars debate which parts of Homer describe practices of the Mycenaean Greeks who dominated the 13th-century-BC Acgean, which parts describe later events, or customs from Homer's own era, and which may have been invented simply to entertain.

Stambolidis said his find proves the story in the 23rd book of the Iliad, of a revenge execution as an offering at a pyre, was a real practice among some ancient Greeks.

"We now know this ritual killing, this ritual vengeance, was happening, at least on Crete. about the time Homer composed his poems," Stambolidis said.

INTERNATIONAL ENTREPRENEURS I.E.C. LTD, MONTREAL, CANADA, WILL BE STAYING AT THE MARRIOTT HOTEL, AMMAN.

THURSDAY, DEC. 20-SATURDAY DEC. 22. INTERESTED PARTIES ARE KINDLY INVITED TO CONTACT HIM

السيد جون جاروني سيكون في إستقبالكم بفندق ماريوت _عمَّان من تاريخ

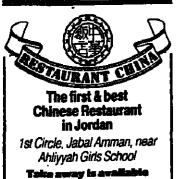

(۲۰ _ ۲۲) كانون أول ۱۹۹۰ الرجاء من المهتمين الاتصال معه على تلفون فندق ماريوت (۲۰۱۰۰)

and provides only police, not consistent with our opportuni-

THE PROFESSIONALS ALWAYS CHOOSE THE RELIABLE

PACKING, AIR FREIGHT FORWARDING, DOOR-to DOOR SERVICES AND DELIVERIES, CUSTOMS CLEARANCE, TICKETS AND, RESERVATIONS.

AMIN KAWAR & SONS TEL 604676 604696

Open daily 12:00-3:30 p.m. 6:30-Midnight

Tel. 638968

EASTERN PACKING DOOR-TO-DOOR SERVICES.

CHEN'S Kashmir CHINESE RESTAURANT Mecca Street, Yarmouk Engineers' Housing RESTAURANT Estate, near Kilo Supermarket

Lunch Friday only Tel: 818214 Come and taste our specialities Open daily 12:00 - 3:30 6:30 - Midnight

Mongolian Barbeque for

STUDIO HAIG Professional Quality in l Hour Service Develop your colour film at our shop and get:-

+ JUMBO photo size 30% larger * Free enlarge meat 20 x 30 cm

Shmeisani - Opp. Grindlays Bank. Phone: 604042 Swefieh tel: 823891

Special Executive Luncheons

Take away service available

Open Daity 12.30-3.30 pm 7.30-11.30 pm

After the Philadelphia Hotel

Towards 3rd circle

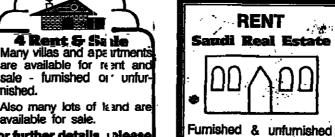

Tel:659519 659520

Tel. 810605, 810609,

_Fax: 810520

in West Amman area. CALL SOHA Rental Dept. 687821/22

apartments & villas for rent

The First Class Hotel in Amman that has a Kitchenette in every room...! DYKOLET

P.O. Box 9403 - Fax 602434 Telex 23888 DAROTL JO Ideal Residence For

Businessmen

Ricardo R 22/61 For the best Amman's exclusive gift shop for your ltalian shoes, MONEY... leather goods, perfumes, lighters, ADVERTISE watches, pens, silverware, porcelain, in the crystalware etc. neisani - Grindlays Bank Bldg Tel. 669 457

Dutch going for goals against humble Malta

VALLETTA (R) — The Netherlands, led by Rudd Gullit and Marco Van Basten, have much to avenge when they play Malta in a European Soccer Championship qualifier Wednesday.

It was the humble Maitese who stopped the mighty Dutch, competition winners in 1988. from reaching the 1984 finals.

Then, with group rivals Spain needing to score 11 goals against Malta in the final qualifying match, the Dutch looked sure of going through — until Spain romped home 12-1.

This time round, the Dutch are determined to put away as many as possible in the Group Six match at the Ta'qali Sta-

But they have not been scoring well so far.

The Dutch lost their first match away against Portugal 1-0 but then recovered with an easy 2-0 victory over Greece in Rotterdam last month, even without cantain Gullit.

Dutch coach Rinus Michels had two late worries for the Malta tie when midfielders Gerald Vanenburg of PSV Eindhoven and Richard Witschge of Ajax Amsterdam pulled out un-

On Sunday Michels replaced Witschge by Erwin Koeman from PSV and Vanenburg by Gillhaus, who plays for Scottish Premier division side Aberdeen was in the squad against Greece but had been left out for Malta in favour of Gullit.

Malta's record in the championships so far has been unimpressive. A 4-0 away defeat to Greece and a 1-1 draw at home against Finland have left them bottom of the group.

German coach Horst Heese is relying on close marking to smother the talents of the Dutch. "The less space we can give them the better," he said.

He is also leaving out veteran midfielder John Buttigieg, a skilful but erratic player whose mistake against Finland last month helped the Finns equalise.

"He has been foolish and not obeyed my instructions," Heese said of Buttigieg.

Italy drops Vialli

Italy dropped striker Gianluca Vialli in favour of his Sampdoria team mate Attilio Lombardo in the squad to face Cyprus in the European Championship qualifier Saturday.

Vialli, who missed most of the Wrold Cup through injury, is still struggling to regain match fitness and has been overshadowed of late by Lombardo, who scored a blistering goal for Sampdoria in their 1-1 draw against Bari Sudany. Vialli, who fractured his right foot in December 1989 and had an operation on his left knee this year, returned to league soccer in November but he did not play Sunday.

Lombardo is likely to combine with Juventus strikers Roberto Baggio and World Cup top scorer Salvatore Schillaci

Regular midfielders Fermando de Napoli, Roberto Donadoni and Giuseppe Giannini are also unfit and were not named. AC Milan defender Alessandro Costacurta, midfielders Stefano Eranio (Genoa) and Diego Fuser (Fiorentina) joined the uncapped Lombardo as the other newcomers in Vicini's

Italy are fourth in the group with two points from two games behind Hungary on four points and the Soviet Union and Norway on three. Cyprus are last with no points.

Spain plans tripple strike-force.

Spain will be out for a hatful of goals when they take on Albania in the European championship Group One qualifying match Wednesday.

ner for the rest of the country in Europe and will be keener than ever to progress to the next stage. There will be a full house at Old Trafford for this one, of his team's draw: "Last season,

we dreamed of a European Cup final against AC Milan, but we would have preferred to meet

Milan later in the competition.

one of several Real Madrid players in Seville with the Spanish team for Wednesday's European nia, said: "Spartak or Dynamo

Dresden were the opponents we preferred, so I am not complain-palying the first leg away.

Mutt'n'Jeff

He added: "March is a good

Striker Emilio Butragueno,

"Now we meet them in the Marseille President Tapie said

make no mistake,"

failed to reach it.

The Spaniards are expected to "Dubai and Dubai Duty Free are very pleased to host the champilonships," said Sheikh Ahn and. "Dubai is eastart the game with three strikers Emilio Butragueno, Carlos Munoz and Manolo Sanchez. ger to prot note world sports and, in this way, we can pro-

Karate Championships in Dubai ject a very positive image of Dubai and the UAE to a very large worldwide audience." Karate is a growing sport and there are more than six million people practising the sport internationally with halfion in the Middle East," Sheikh Ahmad said.

Jordan to compete in World

More than 400 competitors and officials were already gethering in Dubei for the will be staged at the hazarious Al Nasr Sports Club. According to the adjudicators, the Japan Karate Association In-ternational (JKA), it will be the biggest world chample ever held.

So far, more than 40 count tries have confirmed their participation in the champs, which will be staged under JKA rules, with several others also planning to com-pete. The men's teams will consist of five competitors and the women's of three. Gold, silver and broaze medals for teams and individuals will be awarded.

"Contrary to popular belief, karate is a very fries sport," said Abdul Majeed Al Zarouni, team manager for the UAÉ.

"Inside the competition area of course everybody wants to win and things do get serious. But outside, we are all in the same situation and it is us together."

The competition will be in two forms of karate called Kata and Kumite. Kata is a series of defensive and attack moves performed solo while Kumite is one-on-one combat.

A 10-member English team will be among the stronger teams in the event, led by Aidan Trimble, chief instructor in England of the Federa-tion of Shotokan Karate.

"This is certainly one of the best teams I've been in charge of," said Trimble, author of five books on karate.

He said the team won a mber of bronze medals at a champiouship in Las Vegas earlier this year but "hopefully we can go further this time and add a few golds to the

Included in the England group are British universities champion Andrew Wrenall, Federation of Shotokan Karate champions Mark Shaw, David Owen and Andrew Thornley, and former British tional Vince Morris.

Among the first competitors to arrive in Dubai have been some of the top women exponeuts of the Japanese martial art, starting with the Syrians. More than 40 women from 19 countries are scheduled to participate in the championships.

HOROSCOPE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY DECEMBER 19, 1994 By Thomas S. Pierson, Astrologer, Carroll Righter Foundation

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Almost everyone will be eager to gain individual desires now and will be willing to invest quite a lot of energy in going after their per-sonal ambitions. Keep alert for sudden shifts

ARTES: (March 21 to April 19) A day to make sure that you do act with compassion towards one who is a shutin or otherwise upset and unhappy and who needs your en-

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20) This day brings an associate who is pretty demanding to your attention but if you make a special point to soothe his tension all will be well. GEMINI: (May 21 to June 21) You have many projects to do but take it easy and concentrate your attention on making your surroundings more attractive for a useful ally. MOON CHILDREN: (June 22 to July 21) Forget that anxiety that has been so much on your mind and show you are the one who does know how to enjoy yourself at

LEO: (July 22 to August 21) Let those who have anything to do with your home see that you are a devoted family member and they will release some benefits that you

VIRGO: (August 22 to September 22) Whatever means the most to you in principle can now be deepened in your consciousness by attending to the services of your

LIBRA: (September 23 to October 22) This is your time to make sure that you do look to your financial position and use a little money to make some additions to your prop-

SCORPIO: (October 23 to Novem ber 21) Take some time now to show your personal charm and magnetism and avoid getting incolved in those business matters that have been waiting.

SAGITTARIUS: (November 22 to December 21) Some secret sorrow that upsets another suggests you would be wise to do what you can to comfort and solace this indi-

CAPRICORN: (December 22 to January 20) Whatever requires your own attention should be shared with a good friend who is aware of your personal wishes and is able to assist you.

AQUARIUS: (January 21 to February 19) Make sure you do nothing that can in anyway react against your good name and the reputation that you have so carefully built up. PISCES: (February 20 to March Whatever new ideas are yours uld be stated to those who think differently from you in a tactful manner in which no objection could come.

Marseille, AC Milan to clash in European Cup quarterfinal

LONDON (R) -- French soccer champions Marseille got the short straw in the European Cup quarter-final draw Tuesday when they were pitted against defending champions AC Milan. In the other ties Spartak Moscow will play Real Madrid, Bayern Munich face Porto and Red Star Belgrade are up against Dynamo Dresden.

In the Cup Winners' Cup, Manchester United, England's only surviving club, were drawn against Montpellier of France. Millionaire president Bernard Tapie has built a superstar lineup at Marseille specifcally to take the senior European Club

But AC Milan, who earlier this month retained their World Club Championship title against Olimpia of Paraguay, are not Their line-up against Marseille will include Dutchmen Ruud Gullit and Frank Riikaard. Marseille Vice-President Jean-Louis Levreau said: "I can tell you that I am not pleased with this draw. AC Milan are one of the most experienced club teams in Europe. "We can, however, take some satisfaction in the fact that Marco Van Basten will not be playing because of suspension.

Striker Van Basten was suspended for three matches by the European Football Union (UEFA) after elbowing Bruges player Pascal Plovie in the face during a second round secondleg match in Belgium last month. The Soviet clubs still in the competitions, Torpedo Moscow, Spartak Moscow and Dinamo Kiev, had mixed fortunes. Torpedo Moscow, drawn against Brondby of Denmark in the UEFA Cup, should have a good chance of reaching the

But Dinamo have been pitted against Barcelona in the Cup Winners' Cup and Spartak drew Real Madrid in the European Cup.

For Spartak it was scant reward for their brave ousting of Napoli in the last round. Spartak held Napoli to two goalless draws and eventually won on

Although Real, who recently sacked manager John Toshack. have been floundering in the league as Barcelona surge ahead. they are past masters at European competitions.

The Spanish champions beat Swarowski Tirol of Austria 11-3 on aggregate to reach the last In the Cup Winners' Cup, holders Sampdoria managed to avoid compatriots Juventus. The Genoa team drew Legia Warsaw of Poland with Juventus facing Liege of Belgium. Manchester United will heave a sigh of relief at not having to Since Aston Villa's defeat at the hands of Internazionale in the UEFA Cup, United have been left the task of reestablishing English clubs after a five-year ban from European competition.

United manager Alex Fergu-son will allow himself a measure of confidence against Montpellier, currently fourth in their league nine points behind Marseille.

But he will be aware of the southern French club's European record. They beat highlyrated PSV Eindhoven in the first round and then thrashed former European champions Steaua Bucharest 8-0 on aggregate.

In the UEFA Cup, where Italians constitute half the realmost inevitable local derby. Internazionale are to meet Atalanta of Bergamo.

The ties in all three competitions are played over two legs on March 6 and 20.

United manager Ferguson said: "This is a terrifically attractive draw. Montpellier are a team who will come to entertain. "We will be carrying the ban-

Bari, Rotte:rdam likely sites for firals will be one (if more than 40 countries co impeting in the UAE when the 1990 World

Karate Cha mpionships are hosted in D ubai from Dec.

Among the other countries to be represe mied are Japan, the United S tates, the Soviet Union, Austri alia, Canada, England, Braz dl and Korea.

Others will come from as far afield as Arg senting and New Caledonia, while the host country, the UAE will also Making w p the Jordanian delegation will be Osama

Amaria, Fay 1:z Amireh, Muta-

sam Kh-Hlg al, Adnan Abu Baker, Mol hammad Fitian,

Walid Assad | and Khaleel Al

Sheikh Air ruad Ibn Saced Al

Maktoum, it se president of the Dubal Depr strment of Civil event, which will be staged under the p atronage of H.H. Sheikh M chammad Ibn

Rashid Al Misktoum, the UAE minister of defence, will be televised in more than 60 different on nutries with some stations show wing several hours field a strong g team.

ZURICH, S writzerland (AP) — Bari, Italy, and Rotterdam, Netherlands, are the likely sites of finals nex t spring in the European club c ompetition.

The Cup winners Cup final quarter-finals and that will be much would be in Rotterdam on May harder. I don't see anybody who 15 and the Cup of Champions cannot be impressed by Milan. final would loe May 29 in Bari, We won't be favourite to win. according to a proposal adopted 'Maybe it's good from time to Monday night, by the tourna-ment commussion of UEFA, the time to play better teams. But I

European : Kiccer authority. The prop cisal still requires formal approv ad by UEFA's executive committiee which has not yet set a date for its next meeting. UEFA spokesman Rudolf Rothenbue tiler said the com tee also we sald have to decide on whether class of former East Germany : should be allowed to compete in the 1991-92 European club competition.

time for Real Madrid to paly, The East German Soccer but with their break in the sea-Associatio 11 will fuse with the son Spartak could be a bit rus-West Gerr man Association at the end of this season as a result Defender Fernando Hierro of the un ification of Germany. felt Real had the advantage of Rothenbu ehler said advocates of a transition period argued that opponent nobody wanted was barring E ast German clubs from Milan, but in the quarter-finals they are all tough," he said. the next season would reduce their mot livation.

All-German soccer stars seek peaceful new era

STUTTGART, Germany (R) — United Germany make their first foray onto the soccer field Wednesday, hoping their new-found hooligans will not mar a friendly against Switzerland.

"We want great enthusiasm, but no hooligans," said team captain Lothar Matthaeus. The match was arranged after November's gala game between East and West German teams in Leipzig was called off because of fan violence in the former Communist state. After a not by West German fans in Luxembourg at a Buropean Championship qualifier in ., October, officials want the first united Germany game for almost 50 years to celebrate

West Germany's World Cup

triumph and look positively to the world future. Stuttgart police said around 150 officers would watch fans on their way through the city to the stadium, but said they did not expect any trouble. "But if there is trouble, we have the experience to deal with it after staging matches at the 1988 European Championships," a police spokeswoman said. "A 500-strong choir will sing in Stuttgart's Neckarstadion before the game and highlights of the World Cup will be shown on a large video screen before the billed as a tribute to World Cup coach Franz Becken-

New coach Berti Vogts is expected to include one former . East German player, midfielder Matthias Sammer, in his starting line-up. The former Dynamo Dresden player has burst onto the Bundesliga this season with local side VFB Stuttgart.

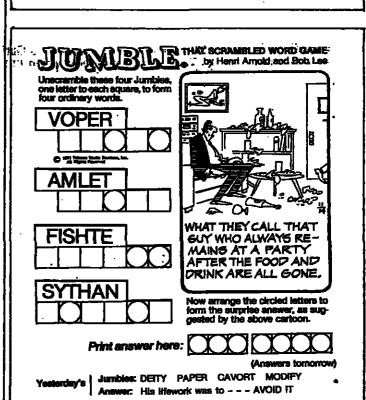

Four other players from the East were named in Vogt's 23-, man squad, only one of whom, Carl Zeiss Jena goalkeeper Perry Braeutigain, still plays in the old East German Oberliga.

Vogts will be missing Italianbased World Cup defender Munich midfielder Thomas

The Germans play another friendly against the Soviet Union at the end of March before resuming their European Championship Group Five qualifying campaign against Belgium in

Swiss trainer Uli Stielike, a former German World Cup player, said: "This is a great day for me, to be trainer for Switzerland in this historic match."

THE BETTER HALF. By Harris HARRISH-17 You keep it too cold in here. that's what I think.'

THE Daily Crossword by Hervey L. Chow

© 1990 Tribune Media Services, Inc. All Rights Reserved

4 Charged particle 5 Vessel 6 Street urchin 7 Rara —

8 Wine word 9 Ready 10 Kind of scout

10 Kind of scour 11 Chin. dish 12 Cans 13 Narrow strip 18 Belg. river 23 Samoan port 25 Overact 26 Small Jake

30 Dogmas

31 Social gatherings 32 Leg part 33 Four gills 34 in a risky situation 30 Pastries

38 Maiden lady
39 Theatre awar
42 Cheer

Yesterday's Puzzie Selved:

52 Cubic m 53 Oz dog 54 Etc. kin 55 Muck 59 Hasten

43 Strikes out 46 Pout

48 Snoozes

Helen's abductor

abductor 6 Intake of breath 10 Salamanders
14 "Cats" name
15 Firmly state
16 Seed coating
17 Mickey and Minnie
19 Interested

19 Lollobrigida 20 Lincoln 21 Bill of sale tackles

26 Recorded 27 Mal de — 28 Pakistan garment 29 Tease

32 Animal track
35 Thesis
37 Clue
38 Endure
40 Peak
41 World police

43 Gown 44 Ultimate

phenomen 53 Doctrines 55 Masculine 56 Gym Item 57 Elevator

58 Reconsider

63 Zestful 64 Corrida shouts degree 45 Sty sound

46 'Adjust
47 Literary device
49 Astronomical

22 24

words Most wan Guards and maining eight teams, there is an

HE'S NOT A BAD MUTT, CAN MY TWIN WELL, GUY TO HAVE BROTHER, JULIUS, STAY WITH US WHILE HE'S I CAN'T AROUND, MUTT!

Andy Capp

Peanuts

WITH OMAR SHARIF & TANNAH HIRSCH

THE ATTRACTIONS OF DUPLICATE

North-South vulnerable. South NORTH 4 J 10 9 8 5 4 0 K 8 5 # Q 8 WEST EAST T 10 6 3 9 7 3 2

◆ AJ932 SOUTH ∳A2 ∇AK4 O A Q J 10 4

West

Pass 1 ♠ Pass 3 NT Pass Opening lead: Queen of ♡ Had this hand been dealt in a rubber bridge game, it would not have elicited the slightest interest. Declarer would have racked up his nine tricks and that would have been that. But it turned up in the Master's Individual almost two scores ago, and overtricks were crucial.

Today, most players would open

North East

Pass

the South hand with two no trump, but the hand was a bit light for that action then. However, three no trump was reached at many tables and four spades at others. Those declarers at four spades made 11 tricks, losing a trump and a club. At three no trump, the opening lead was invaribly the queen of hearts. Most declarers won and led a club to the queen and ace. After either a heart or club continuation, the declarers took their nine tricks and conceded the rest.

The one exception was the eventual winner, the late Sidney Silodor. He spotted a line that gave him a chance for 11 tricks and an outright top, at no cost whatsoever.

After winning the heart opening lead. Silodor cashed the ace of spades. Had that fetched nothing but low cards, Silodor intended to switch to a club to the queen, guarantecing his nine tricks. But when the king of spades dropped under the ace, declarer was able to continue spades, forcing out the remaining high honor and setting up five tricks in the suit. That scored 660, better than everyone else.

Rising natural disasters worry insurance industry

ZURICH (R) - A Swiss insurance company has said changes in the world environment will probably increase the risk of natural catastrophes in coming

The rising number of storms and floods and the increased damage they cause must be taken as the first indication of this development," Swiss Reinsurance Co. said in a study. .

Figures in its report, "Natural Catastrophes and Heavy Damage Events," showed at least 1.6 million deaths and damage valued at $83.3 billion in 3,111 events between 1970 and 1989.

This year the insurance industry faced claims for insured damage worth at least $10 billion after winter storms.

Several factors seemed to support the view that the greenhouse factors seemed to support the view that the greenhouse effect - the warming of the world's climate through industrial pollution - was causing natural catastrophes to happen more often, the report added.

"It is relatively certain, for example, that because of the warming of the earth's atmosphere, the hurricanes which start in Central America are being pushed more and more to the north."

While much was still uncertain, for example, that because of the warming of the earth's atmosphere, the hurricanes which start in Central America are being pushed more and more to the north."

While much was still uncertain in the climate debate, the greenhouse effect seemed likely to have important consequences for the earth and the insurance industry in the next decades, Swiss Reinsurance said.

The report also noted that man-made catastrophes were on the increase.

Until 1987, billion-dollar insurance claims usually stemmed from natural catastrophes, but over the last two years more claims from man-made disasters reached this level.

These included several offshore oil platform accidents and the pollution off Alaska from the grounded tanker Exxon Valdez in 1989, the report said.

LONDON (R) - Following are the buying and selling rates for leading world currencies and gold against the dollar at midsession on the London foreign exchange and bullion markets Tuesday

LONDON EXCHANGE RATES

One Sterling One U.S. dollar 1.9310/20 1.1570/80 1.4870/80 1.6775/85 1.2750/60 30.72/77 5.0575/0625

5.6050/6100

U.S. dollar Canadian dollar Deutschemarks Dutch guilders Swiss francs Belgian francs French francs Italian lire

One ounce of gold 375.90/376.40

Japanese yen Swedish crowns Norwegian crowns

U.S. dollars

WORLD STOCK MARKETS

TOKYO - Stocks closed higher after a day of thin trading, propped up mainly by index-linked buying. Expectations of lower interest rates lent support. The Nikkei Index closed up 336.11 points, or 1.40 per cent, at 24,424.02 after losing 261.59 points

SYDNEY — Concern about the economy and chances of a Gulf war hit the market badly. The All Ordinaries index closed 12.1 points lower at 1,283.6, its lowest level since March 1, 1988, when it ended at 1.273.3 points. HONG KONG — Stocks recovered from early losses to end higher in quiet trading on overseas buying with very little local activity. The blue-chip Hang Seng Index rose 14.73 points to end at 3,066.65. SINGAPORE -- Share prices ended slightly higher in thin trading on late bargain hunting after early weakness and sharp falls Monday. The Straits Times industrial index recovered 2.82 points to end at 1,174.40. It lost 16.75 points on Monday.

BOMBAY - Prices fell after the government raised excise and import duties to mop up fresh revenue. The Bombay Stock Exchange Index cell 76.81 points to 1,111.73. The National Index lost 31.48 to 556.19.

FRANKFURT - Prices ended little changed. "The market is in a bad way when it barely manages to rise at all after a three per cent drop," said Klaus Stabel, trader at Berenberg bank, the Dax index ended 1.54 points higher at 1.477.41

LONDON - Shares closed slight firmer in moderate late trading following a stronger trend on Wall Street. Dealers said the market remained relatively quiet ahead of the Christmas holiday. The FTSE 100 ended up 3.9 points at 2,161.8.

NEW YORK -- Blue chips tacked on additional gains at midday, but held off the day's best levels. Trading was confined to a narrow range. Investors were hopeful of a further cut in interest rates, perhaps as early as Wednesday. At 1721 GMT the Dow Jones industrial average was up 15.10 at 2,608.42.

U.S. economic policymakers big increase in oil revenue banana syndrome appears to be overtaking American officials as they grope for ways to describe economic prospects but find that uttering the word "recession" leaves a bad taste in their mouths.

Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady sidestepped interviewers' efforts during the weekend to persuade him to say the weakened American economy was in recession.

"It's quite clear - there's no point being unrealistic — that we're going to have a significant economic slowdown in the fourth quarter of this year," Brady said on television.

Alan Greenspan, who as chairman of the Federal Reserve central bank has key responsibility for the economy, said recently that "a meaningful downturn" was in progress.

It would be hard to find a private economist who does not think a recession is at least beginning, but policymakers want to avoid making things worse by depressing consumers.

In 1978 Alfred Kahn, then chairman of president Jimmy Carter's Council on Wage and Price Stability, bluntly said that unless inflation was brought under control the nation might face a deep depression.

Kahn was promptly asked by the White House to stop using that particular word. So he began substituting the word "banana," saying that the United States risked going into a banana and recalling the great banana of

A recession is generally defined as consecutive business quarters of shrinking production of goods and services.

Get business-minded, Indonesian Muslims told

JAKARTA (R) — Indonesian Muslims should improve their skills to catch up with Chinesedominated big business, ministers and businessmen told an Islamic

Minister of trade, Arifin Siregar, said Muslims, 90 per cent of Indonesians, lost their business sense during 300 years of Dutch colonial rule when trade was restricted to the "minority group" of immigrants, mostly

"Muslim entrepreneurs have the same capacity as the minority group but we must change our attitude towards business, Antara news agency Tuesday quoted him as telling a Muslim Probosutedjo, a half-brother of President Suharto who shares many business projects with ethnic-Chinese Indonesian conglomerates, said Muslims should be more economically active.

"Muslims shouldn't just wait. around for a piece of the development cake to be handed to them by conglomerates, they should take a part in development," Antara quoted him as telling the four-day conference of the Muslim group Muhammadyoverbooking will be guaranteed compensation under rules agreed by European Community

(EC) transport ministers

A passenger with a confirmed reservation prevented from boarding an overbooked flight at an EC airport will automatically by entitled to $140 for a short haul flight and $280 for a flight of more than 350 kilometres.

Monday.

The split between Indonesia's haves and have-nots has also been the focus of an army semi-

Army chief of staff, Edi Sudradjat, said in a paper given to the seminar that a government habit of giving special deals to favoured business groups would merely widen the rift.

President Suharto this year backed a move by big business to sell shares on easy terms to workers' cooperatives to try to narrow the growing gap between the ethnic Chinese-dominated urban rich and the rural poor, mostly indigenous Muslims.

The move had little practical effect on the welfare of the world's largest Muslim community, economists say.
Junior Finance Minister Nas-

rudin Simintapura told the Muhammadyiah that, as the country's second largest Islamic organisation, it was in a position to reduce the gap between rich and poor by "social engineer-

Antara quoted him as saying practical measures must replace sloganeering in the fight for equality. Neither he nor the other speakers at the seminar gave details of what those mea-

EC to guarantee compensation for 'bumped off' air passengers

BRUSSELS (R) — Passengers The payment, halved when European Airlines (AEA), but

"bumped off" flights through the passenger can catch a re- the new rules mean that airlines placement flight within two hours, will be in addition to any hotels, meals and telephone calls

Airlines admit they often overbook flight by up to 10 per cent as experience has shown many passengers may not turn compensation under guidelines agreed within the Association of EC airlines already provide the stranded passenger needs.

U.S. trade gap widens to $11.6 b

WASHINGTON (R) — The U.S. trade deficit soared in October to $11.61 billion, the biggest in two and a half years, as the Gulf crisis caused prices for imported oil to rise sharply. the Commerce Department reported Tuesday.

The deficit worsened by 24.5 per cent from September's revised $9.33 billion, which was previously reported as $9.41 bil-

Desoite a lower volume of imported oil, the total cost of the imports climbed to $7.2 billion in October from $6.2 billion in September because of higher

Total U.S. exports rose 8.6 per cent in October to a record $34.77 billion while imports climbed by 12.2 per cent to a record $46.38 billion, the department said.

The October trade deficit was the biggest monthly gap since February 1989.

Meanwhile, U.S. consumer prices rose 0.3 per cent in November, half the rate in October, reflecting a slowdown in oil price increases, the Labour De-

from outside the Community will not be able to leave passengers stranded when flights take formally approved, will not prevent airlines from paying their passengers more compensation

if they want to, as some already visor, all services required.

The rules, which must still be off from an EC airport.

Banana syndrome overtakes | Proposed Iran budget sees

NICOSIA (R) — Iran projects a 24 per cent increase in its oil and gas revenue that would help bring its foreign exchange earnings to about $20 billion in the next Iranian year beginning March 21.

The estimate is based on the "relatively low (oil) price of $18.4 per barrel," the Tranian news agency IRNA Monday quoted Iran's planning chief Massoud Roghani Zanjani as President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani, presenting the budget bill to parliament on Dec. 9, said the economy had turned around last year after years of decline during the 1980-88 war with Iraq.

He said the government's more market-oriented policies were paying off and in many areas the economy was ahead of targets set down in a five-year plan which envisages an 8.1 per cent annual growth in the gross domestic product to 1994.

"We have a period of serious austerity ahead of us," Ettelaat newspaper quoted Rafsanjani as saying about the task of putting the economy on a peace footing.

"He added: "It is difficult, but we are going through it ... we can really outpace the plan which some thought was overambitious."

Next year's general budget is set at 18.79 trillion riyals equivalent to $293.55 billion at the official exchange rate of 64 riyals per dollar - an increase of 43 per cent over the current year, Zanjani said.

The general budget is composed of two parts. More than 10 owned companies which is up about one-third on the current year's figure, Zanjani said.

The rest, 8.19 trillion rivals, is the government budget, which shows a 46 per cent increase. With government revenue expected to rise by 55 per cent, the budget deficit will drop to 1.10 trillion riyals.

But 2.61 trillion riyals of the government revenue is due to the increasing profit from selling petrodollars at rates of up to 20 times the official parity to importers, a linchpin of Rafsanjani's economic gameplan.

The policy — amounting to an unofficial devaluation of the riyal — had helped stimulate domestic production in some sectors by making imports more expensive, Rafsanjani said.

Zanjani said foreign exchange revenue was expected to be in line with the five-year plan's target of $19.78 billion. Annual non-oil exports have stood at about a billion dollars in recent

Rafsanjani said Iran planned to increase its oil output by 410,000 barrels per day (b/d) over the next year, enabling it to have 2.43 million b/d available for export compared with 1.98 million b/d in the current year. Neither Rafsanjani nor Zanjani gave a dollar figure for oil income or any foreign borrowing in the budget, but the president said total oil and gas revenue would be 3.94 trillion riyals.

It includes the differentialfrom selling dollars to importers, 18.7 billion riyals from gas sales and 36.8 billion rivals from ex-ing the differential, it is 23.8 per cent higher than the current year's projected figure, Rafsanjani said.

Tax revenue is projected to grow 40 per cent over the current year's estimated figure to 2.25 trillion riyals, he said. Another 900 billion rivals is listed as other revenues.

Zanjani said the budget bill set detence expenditure at 1.20 trillion rivals and allocated more than 360 billion riyals for internal security. Health and education allocations total 2.52 trillion rivals, or 46 per cent of government expenditure.

The development budget is to increase 62 per cent to 2.64 trillion riyals but current expenditure would still account for two-thirds of government out-

He said the government planned to sell off more state enterprises in the coming year and place hundreds of development projects now run from Tehran in provincial control.

The budget nearly quadruples the allocation for war damage reconstruction to 270 billion riyals and sets another 120 billion for rebuilding Caspian coast areas devastated by a quake which killed 35,000 people and made half a million homeless last

The budget for agriculture is to increase by quarter, Rafsan-jani said, but the country would still need to import $2.7 billion worth of wheat, rice, tea, meat, fodder and chemical fertilisers, just above the current year's

Gorbachev stresses discipline to prevent economic collapse

MOSCOW (R) - President Mikhail Gorbachev said Monday foreign aid alone would not save the Soviet Union from collapse and a strong hand was needed to impose economic discipline.

Gorbachev told the Soviet Congress of People's Deputies, the highest organ of state power, that the basis for recovery must be restoration of strong executive government and law and

"We need tough measures and we shall take them," he said. "What is happening now is not simply insufficient output. It is a consequence of disorder, lack of control criminal irresponsibility towards the population."

Gorbachev painted a grim picture of economic disintegration and chaos, with regions refusing to supply each other with food and industrial goods.

A breakdown in links between agricultural and industrial areas has led to acute shortages of food, long quenes and rationing in many areas. Appeals for foreign help have resulted in an influx of food parcels and offers of billions of dollars in Western credits. Gorbachev made clear that foreign assistance would not be enough and that discipline was the bedrock of Soviet plans to introduce a market economy and improve food supplies. "With all the importance of help from abroad and credits, they by themselves will not resove our problems. We must count on our own strengths, our organisation and decisiveness to switch to a market system," he He outlined some measures for next year, saying that state purchases from agricultural enterprises would be set at 60 per cent of average annual purchases for the past five years. The remainder will be available for free market sales.

Gorbachev said an agreement on food supplies between the repulbics should be signed at the

He also announced measures to stimulate agricultural output on private polts, but suggested ership of land should be submitted to a referendum. The Russian Federation, the biggest Soviet republic, adopted legislation this month allowing for private ownership of land for the first time since the 1917 that the question of private own-

Bolsbevik revolution. Soviet Deputy Prime Minister Leonid Abalkin, the government's senior economic adviser, said a collapse in discipline was the reason for food shortages.

"Food is lacking not because there isn't any, but decause there is no order. Laws are not being observed," he told a news conference.

Vvacheslav Chernoivanov. deputy head of the state committee in charge of food supplies. said discipline would put food in the shops. "If order were restored, the flow of food products would be significantly better,"

he said. With regions ignoring government decrees or otherwise not cooperating and economic jurisdiction between the central governemnt and the republics still to be determined, Abalkin said uncertainty surrounded next year's budget. "If the budget is not confirmed, then hospitals cannot pay their bills for food or for laundry. Salaries cannot be paid to teachers or servicemen," he told a news conference.

Abalkin said the government authorised certain budget outlays for the first quarter of next year Saturday, without waiting for approval by the Supreme Soviet (parliament). "We simply cannot wait," he said.

He said Gorbachev had told the government to confirm outlays for schools, hospitals and natural disaster relief areas such as Chernobyl, site of the world's worst nuclear accident.

TOMAT To Lovely models and attractive colours

American Recreation Association is seeking general manager for full time Qualifications: Bachelor degree, supervisory experience. Fluent English is Send resume to: P.O. Box 354 Amman, Jordan attn: American Employees Community Service Association.

Consists of 3 bedrooms, 3 bathrooms, salon, lounge, dining room, with central heating. Location: opposite Al Raed Al Arabi School in an overlooking location.

Please call tel. 601937 Amman, from 9 a.m. tili 5

ANNOUNCEMENT

- A man and his wife to work as domestic helpers at their house.

Also for the same family: A single girl is needed for the same purpose. Please call: 662493 and 669395.

Your best choice

The Spanish Cultural Centre

Announces

Announces that it is holding a winter Spanish language The course which lasts for three months will start January

Registration for the course starts on December 18, 1990. The course is for all levels.

Classes will be on: Saturdays, Mondays and Wednesdays.

For more information please call Tel. 624649, Jabai Amman, First Circle.

CAR FOR SALE DUTY UNPAID

Honda Accord model 1987. Diplomatic use.

Tel. 686416 from 8 a.m. - 2 p.m.

Tel: 677420 CONCORD Sylvester Stallone 1-HER ALIPI LOCK UP 2- BEETNE JUSE 3:30, 6:15, 8:30, 10:30 p.m.

Cinema

NUOUM

ARCTIC HEAT

Cinema

The Fearful Road

(Arabic)

Show: 12:30, 3:15, 5:15, 7:15, 9:45 p.m.

Tel: 625155 RAINBÓW LETHAL WEAPON

Tel: 634144 PHILADELPHIA

ANNOUNCEMENT

On the occasion of Christmas and New Year, the Swedish

Embassy in Amman will be closed on the following dates:

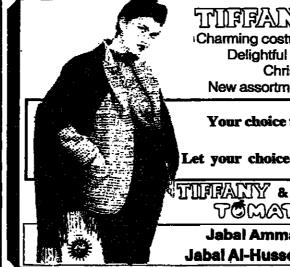

Monday, December 31, 1990 - Tuesday, January 1,

Monday, December 24 - Wednesday 26, 1990.

Show: 12:30, 3:30, 6:15, 8:30, 10:30,

Tel: 699238 PLAZA

Let your choice be from the premises they prefer

FOR RENT

Furnished flats, one and two bedrooms, swimming pool, super-

For more information call: 668928

Location at fifth Circle pear Abdoun Supermarket.

THEFALLY & TOMATO Charming costumes for juveniles and maidens. Delightful surprise on the occasion of Christmas and New Year. New assortment specially for this occasion.

Your choice for the gift means a lot to several friends.

Jabai Al-Hussein, Firas Circle, Tel: 681570

Jabai Amman 3rd Circle, Tel. 644681

APARTMENT FOR RENT IN SHMEISANI

A family is looking for:

Moldova walks out of parliament; BANGIADESH Uzbek leader attacks Gorbachev

MOSCOW (R) - Delegates from Moldova walked out of the Soviet parliament Tuesday. angered that Moscow was ignoring their call for a crackdown on the southwestern republic's breakaway ethnic minorities.

Deputies said the walkout was sparked by the presence at the Congress of People's Deputies of invited observers from Moldova's two breakaway districts. the self-proclaimed Turkic Gagauz and the Russian Dnestr

Opposition to Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's proposed new union treaty, binding ethnic republics to Moscow, has been building among Moldova's Romanian-speaking majority.

"We are leaving for good," Moldovan deputy Dumitru Matkovsky told reporters after leaving the hall. "We don't agree with the position of the centre. Matkovsky said Moscow's indifference to the battle with the rebel districts had doomed Mol-dova's participation in any new

"We are not being allowed to sort out our sovereignty by ourselves. We won't sign the union treaty. There is no chance of that now," he said. The three Baltic republics -Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia and the Transcaucasian republic of Georgia have all said they

WASHINGTON (AP) - President George Bush Monday chose former Tennessee Gov.

Lamar Alexander, who has been active in education reform, to fill the post of education secretary vacated last week when Lauro

Cavazos was forced to resign.

Meanwhile, the administration signalied it may be backing away from a controversial

Education Department edict that race-based minority scholarships are illegal. White House

Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater

LONDON (AP) — The House of Commons voted by wide margins against restoring capital punishment, which was abolished by act of parliament in 1969 except for treason and pira-

It is the ninth time since 1969 that the House has voted against restoring the death penalty in defiance of overwhelming public support for its reintroduction.

public opinion polls have shown four-fifths of the British public

Legislators in a series of votes defeated motions to introduce hanging for general murders, murders of policemen or murder by firearms, explosives or

But the House voted 289-257

of a convicted murderer and his accomplice, occurred Aug. 13, want it restored.

offensive weapons.

would not sign a new treaty under any circumstances.

Russia, the Ukraine and others have demanded further enhancement of the republics' rights under any new accord with the Kremlin.

But the Moldovan walkout dramatically underscored the ethnic headaches plaguing Gorbachev as he tries to patch up the crumbling union and raised the explosive issue of who is empowered to sign such an agree-

Hardliners have demanded that the Russian minorities in many republics be allowed to by-pass local objections and sign a new agreement with Moscow. The elected leaderships of the republics, however, insist that only they can approve such

At the weekend up to 200,000 people rallied in the Moldovan capital, Kishinyov, to denounce the draft treaty and to demand a boycott of the congress by local

The walkout leaves two glaring gaps in the sea of red-upholstered delegates' chairs in the Kremlin Palace of Congresses. Lithuania, which has suspended a formal independence declaration, sent no representatives at

Meanwhile, Uzbekistan's president on Tuesday joined cri-

said Bush was very disturbed

so clearly identified with the movement to improve education." Bush said in presenting Alexander. He described the nominee as being "at the forefront of the movement to res-

Alexander, a Republican.

served two terms as governor of Tennessee from 1978 to 1986.

For the past three years, he has

Party legislator Ivan Lawrence said during the debate that the nation was overwhelmingly wanted capital punishment restored. He said the deterrent of life imprisonment for murder

But Home Secretary Ken

Baker, the cabinet member responsible for law and order.

warned about the danger of mis-

"There is no appeal from the grave. The possibility of an innocent person being hanged by mistake cannot be dismissed

The votes follow the freeing of four people wrongly convicted of murder in Irish Republican

Army bombings and the sche-men from Northern Ireland and an Englishwoman, were freed

last year after 15 years in jail with a shrug," he said.

U.K. MPs reject capital punishment had totally failed.

carriages of justice.

tructure our nation's schoois."

"No governor in the country is

Bush names new education secretary about the ruling.

tics challenging Mikhail Gor-bachev's blueprint to save the Soviet Union from collapse, raisin the threat of a powerful Central Asian coalition to torpedo the plan.

Islam Karimov, the Uzbek Communist Party boss, told the Soviet parliament a series of decisions the Kremlin had gravely damaged the constituent

He criticised Gorbachev's proposed new treaty binding the 15 republics and the centre as reserving too much power for Moscow, adding Uzbekistan's support required major structural changes.

The centre should not limit the rights of the republics but it should be the other way around." Karimov said in the second day of debate on Gorbachev's state of the union address. "We support Kazakhstan on this point."

Karimov's remarks followed a powerful barrage Monday from Kazakh President Nursultan Nazarbayev, a rising star on the national scene, who said the flood of local sovereignty declarations was an expression of "self-preservation."

Delegates from Estonia, meanwhile, rejected Gorbachev's plan, for a referendum on his proposed union treaty. The republic's president, Arnold Ruutel, instead called for a bi-been president of the University

While governor, he pushed for education reform and instithat gave public school teachers higher pay based on eduction

On the subject of race-based scholarships, Fitzwater said

Bush has ordered the Education Department to conduct a quick review, with advice from the Justice Department and White following conviction for murder.

Three detectives who investigated the 1974 IRA bombings at Guildford southwest of London and at Woolwich in southeast

London will be charged with conspiring to pervert the course

tion Service announced last month. Seven people died in the

At the time of their release, the London newspaper the Sunday Times commented: "The release of the Guildford four should end, once and for all, any Appeals by another group of prisoners, the Birmingham six.

court of appeal said Monday.

central England the previous year that killed 21 people. Critics allege police beat confessions out of them.

will be heard early next year, the talk of bringing back hanging.

two bombings.

oce, the Crown Pro

levels and performance.

tuted a "master teacher plan" of Tennessee.

lateral accord recognising Estonia's right to independence.

Karimov said a Kremlin decision to raise meat prices had forced his republic to find two billion roubles ($3.63 billion) and he denounced the "poisoning" of his land and people to fulfill inflated government demands for cotton production. "Cotton, once our pride, has become our tragedy," Karimov The joint assault reveals a deep crack in the once solid pro-Gorbachev bloc in Central Asia, and threatens to stifle the draft treaty altogether. Karimov's attack came amid rising frustration from deputies over their inability to shore up their own authority and overcome the country's political and

The whole country is in anarchy," said collective farm Director Alexander Dolganov. "Look how much we have talked, look bow many decisions we've economic slide.

"But everything we've done has stayed in the air. Things are getting worse and worse. It's not surprising 60,000 people a year kill themselves in the Soviet Union," he told the session.

"A lot is said about perestroika but it has done virtually nothing for the country. We are not on the way to Stalinism or socialism but catastrophe.'

Indian premier vows use of force to end civil strife will prevail over them, otherwise the unavoidable will happen - the government will have to take unpleasant decisions," he said.

said: "When the government is forced to use coercive power, that is an unpleasant decision."

The riots erupted this month

when Hindu fundamentalists renewed their campaign to build a temple on a site occupied by a mosque in the northern Indian town of Ayodhya. Singh's government fell when he lost the support of a Hindu right-wing party during the first attempt to build the temple in late October.

ering in the northern states of Punjab and Jammu and Kashmir, Chandra Shekhar said he was willing to hold a dialogue with anyone "who is an Indian and is willing to ... settle issues within the framework of the

That means his government is not willing to negotiate on demands for independence, but will consider any other political

But, he admitted there had been little response from Sikh militant groups in Punjab or Muslim militias in the Kashmir

"Unless and until there is (a) positive response publicly, there is no use," he said. "Let us see how far we can go and how they Sikh radicals in Punjab have killed at least 3,100 people this year in their quest for independence. In Kashmir, at least 1.600 people have died in 1990.

are ready to adjust."

constitution.

Valley.

On the separatist revolts ling-

Asked what this meant, he

NEW DELHI (AP) - As independent India's most frenzied religious riots ravage the nation and its economy, Prime Minister Chandra Shekhar warned he is prepared to use unlimited "coercive power" to end the fighting.

"Any amount of force that is needed will be used in order to stop this situation," he said Monday in a 15-minute Associated Press interview at his New Delhi residence. "There's no At least 300 people have been killed in fighting between India's Hindu majority and Muslim minority in the past 10 days. Another 300 people were killed in rioting in October and November. The ferocity of the violence has little parallel since the rioting when the British-ruled sub-continent was divided into predominantly-Hindu India and Islamic Pakistan in 1947. The current bout of rioting has errorted in several cities. Mobs have axed infants to death. burned people and lynched passengers in trains. In many cities, security forces have prevented large-scale killings by opening fire to disperse rival mobs.

Chandra Shekhar, who took office on Nov. 10 after the religious upheaval was instrumental in the removal of his predecessor V.P. Singh, said his government wanted to tackle the situation with "restraint and patience." But, he said, both Hindus and

Muslims had among them "certain vested interests who want to keep this problem going." "Let us hope that good sense secret resistance network ated in 1958 a full-fledged net-STOCKHOLM (R) — Neutral Sweden, working closely with U.S. and British spy agencies work known only to the prime minister and a few selected during the cold war, established cabinet ministers, military leaders and industrialists. a secret resistance network It was led by a Swedish against a feared Soviet occupa-

Sweden reportedly set up

Tuesday. The network, supported by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) and Britain's MI6, existed from 1958 until at least 1978 and included 150 standby resistance leaders and special arms depots spread across Sweden, Dagens Nyheter

Its report was the latest in a series of revelations indicating Sweden has closer strategic ties than it has acknowledged pub-

The newspaper made no mention of a secret NATO-sponsored network known as Gladio, whose existence was revealed by Italy last October. Gladio was established to wage a guerrilla campaign if Western Europe fell to Warsaw Pact forces.

Sweden is not a NATO member, but former CIA Director William Colby, who worked for the U.S. agency in the country from 1951 to 1953, said last month he helped set up standby resistance movements in Scandinavia after World War II. He declined to elaborate.

Dagens Nyheter, citing wellplaced sources, said Colby's work was continued by the Swedish government which cre-

tion, a Swedish newspaper said na, whose work for the International Chamber of Commerce made it possible for him to travel businessman, Alvar Lindencroinconspicuously to the United States and Britain for briefings with the CIA and MI6, the report said. The network, which would have made radio contact with the CIA's London office in case of war, was to have used CIA supplies for guerrilla and sabotage attacks against Soviet occu-It also had intended to draw on CIA support to evacuate the Swedish cabinet, royal family and defence staff to London where an exile government would lead the resistance.

Dagens Nyheter said it was unclear what happened to the organisation after 1978 when Lindencrona retired. He died three years later.

Asked about the report, Swedish Assistant Under-Secretary of Defence Nils Gylden said he was unaware of any secret resistance network.

Research supported by foreign documents and participants' accounts have indicated Sweden had secret weapons and intelligence agreements with the United States from the late 1940s through to the 1980s.

S. Korean students, parents suffer through exam day

SEOUL (R) - Over half a million high school students and parents snarled traffic in Seoul and other major cities Tuesday, South Korea's annual day of rimal agony for college entrance examinations. Youhap News Agency said 662,469 students were applying for 146,346 places in 94 universities. Many students spent most of the night outside test centres to avoid being late for an 8.40 a.m. starting time which, if missed, could mean waiting a whole year before trying again. Students aban-doned taxis and cars caught in traffic jams to sprint, hitch rides on motorcycles, police cars and, in one case, a police helicopter. In Seoul police mobilised 5,330 policemen, 1,501 motorcycles and 688 police cars to get students to the exams on time. Five major cities shortened the workday for state employees to ease traffic for the student rush. One student, injured when his house was robbed the night before, was taking the gruelling eight-and-ahalf hour exams in a campus clinic, state radio said. Youhap said another was whisked to his exam hall by police after having 23 stitches in his head following a car crash. Parents defied below-freezing temperatures to pray outside the examination halls for their children's success.

Soviet police nab workers trying to steal aid

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Red Cross officials tried to steal parcels of humanitarian aid donated from abroad but were foiled by police, a newspaper reported Monday. The head of the Soviet Red Cross office in Moscow's Perovo district, assisted by 10 women employees, had set aside parcels containing sausage, canned meat, chocolate, coffee, sugar, vegetable oil, macaroni products, cigarettes, ballpoint pens, toothbrushes, dresses. men's suits and children's clothing, the government newspaper Izvestia said. The items were intended for distribution to the needy, the sick and the elderly, Izvestia reported. Hundreds of tonnes of food, medicine and other aid has been flowing into the Soviet Union from abroad in recent weeks as governments and organisations try to alleviate some of the shortages afflicting the worsening Soviet economy.

Greek director excommunicated

FLORINA, Greece (R) - A Greek Orthodox bishop excommunicated director Theo Angelopulos as work on his latest film started under heavy police guard in Florina. Bishop Augustinos Kandiotis told some 1,000 people packing Florina's main church the script of the Suspended Step Of The Stork — a $3.3 million production starring Italian actor Marcello Mastroianni - was unpatriotic and anti-church. Kandiotis, who campaigns against sexual freedom, beauty contests and women smoking, said that because of the script's "down with borders" message, Angelopoulos and his crew were excommunicated for four years. He threatened "lightning will strike" unless they leave the town near the Yugoslav border.

Arsenio Haii argues with gays

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Talkshow host Arsenio Hall argued at the beginning of his programme with two homosexual activists who demanded to know why he doesn't interview more homosexual guests. The nearly 10-minute debate, which at times turned into a shouting match, appeared to run uncut on the show. It was taped early in the evening for broadcast later that night. It started when two. men, one wearing a T-shirt carrying the slogan "queer na-tion," stood up in the audience and questioned why Hall didn't have more homosexual guests on the programme. "There are a lot of gay guests on this show," Hall shot back, "but it am't none of your damn business that they are gay." Hall, who's black, said he is sensitive to the plight of all minorities, but the hecklers accused him of making fun of homosexuais. "I do black jokes-I do gay jokes," he said. "I'm s comedian." Hall was still funding: minutes later when his first guest, actor Paul Hogan, joined him in front of the cameras-Hogan urged him to relax.

Bangladesh forms commission to probe corruption DHAKA (R) - Bangladesh's caretaker government appointed a commission Tuesday to investigate alleged corruption by former President Hossain Mohammad Ershad and members of his administration, state radio re-

Acting President Shahabuddin Ahmad named Supreme Court Judge D.M. Ansaruddin to head the three-man inquiry commismembers are Abdul Hannan, a member of the National Board of Revenue and Mahbubul Huq. a police commissioner. The radio gave no further details. The commission will also look into allegations of misuse of power by Ershad, his ministers

State radio said the other and government employees, the Bangladesh News Agency (BSS) Opposition and student leaders are demanding a quick trial for Ershad, who resigned on Dec. 4 after weeks of violent

They accuse Ershad. 60, who seized power in a coup in 1982. of crimes ranging from gold smuggling to stealing foreign aid

protests against his eight-year

Ahmad has said there is not yet enough evidence to take Ershad to court.

Ershad, who was arrested on Dec. 12, is under house arrest. Former Deputy Prime Minister Shah Moazzem Hossain and Interior Minister Mahmudul Hasan have been detained.

Other officials, including ex-Foreign Minister Anisul Islam Mahmud, are in hiding.

Ahmad restated his government's commitment to pentrality and promised that general elections in March would be free and

"My administration will remain firm and fully neutral to make the March 2 polls completely neutral, free and fair, he said in a speech Tuesday. He said his caretaker government was taking steps to ensure a smooth transition to democracy and had told people to surrender illegal arms by Dec. 26 or face penalties of up to life im-

leaders urge Quebec to stay

Canadian

MONTREAL (R) - Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney and his chief rival, Liberal leader Jean Chretien, have appealed independently to the Frenchspeaking province of Quebec to resist the temptation to secede.

Chretien, appearing Monday before the Quebec commission studying the province's future, warned that a separation would be far more costly and acrimo-nious than Quebeckers have been led to believe.

"Many are saying we'll separate and then remarry," he said, referring to remarks by Quebec oliticians that a declaration of independence would be immediately followed by the establishment of an economic association between Quebec and the rest of Canada.

"I'm not sure it'll happen," he said. His statement raised the threat that the rest of Canada would reject Ouebec's proposals to continue sharing a currency and trading freely as if nothing had happened.

Chretien, a Quebec native who could be Canada's next prime minister, was received coolly by the commission, many of whose members view him as a traitor to his home province.

He held powerful posts under former Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, a strong advocate of central government who had littie sympathy for Quebec's nationalist aspirations.

Chretien's warning followed on the heels of an appeal by Mulroney Sunday for national

"Do we still want to live together as a country? My answer is 'yes'", Mulroney said. He argued that it would be senseless for Canada to tear itself apart while other regions -Europe, in particular - forge links to enhance their global position.

Mulroney suggested more power could be transferred from the federal government to the provinces in a "re-confedera-tion" --- a renewal of the federal system adopted by Canada in

But neither he nor Chretien had anything concrete to offer Quebec, which is not the only dissatisfied province but the one closest to seceding.

Polls show that around twothirds of all Quebeckers favour sovereignty-association, and just over half want outright independence.

Chretien warned the commission that a separation would not end Onebec's frustrations. He said the English Canadian provinces, which would be split geographically, might seek terntonal concessions, such as a corridor linking the eastern and western provinces. "If people are tired of constitutional negotiations, they'll find the negotiations relating to separation extremely complicated," he added. Quebeckers were cowed 10 years ago by the economic threats, and the province agreed to renew power-sharing talks.

rival government plan a mistake

BANGKOK (AP) - A powerreported Tuesday.

Up to a dozen members of Burma's main opposition group, the National League for Democracy, were expected to announce the formation of a provisional government Tuesday at the headquarters of an ethnic group waging an armed revolt against the Rangoon administra-threat of arrest in Burma since winning parliamentary scats in the May 27 national election. The League won the election by a landslide, taking 392 of the 485 contested seats, but the military has refused to allow the opposition to take power.

"It would be a great mistake if the political party which won in the elections and other political parties committed themselves by forming a jungle-based government in collaboration with the outlawed insurgents who are regarded by both the government and the people of (Burma) as illegal elements," Maj.-Gen. Khin Nyunt, Burma's chief of military intelligence, was quoted

Khin Nyunt answered questions submitted in writing by the Bangkok Post newspaper.

Last week, Khin Nyunt announced that the military junta had arrested 18 members of the League in recent days for planning to establish a shadow In the newspaper interview,

Khin Nyunt repeated his government's position that it would transfer power only when a new constitution had been drafted. Western diplomats have said that process could take years. Reminding readers that the existing government is recognised by the United Nations, he said, "we firmly believe that no nation will be in a position to welcome the government in Western diplomats have also said it is unlikely any nation would recognise a parallel gov-The opposition declaration was expected to be issued at Mannerolaw, the headquarters of the Karen National Union located on the Burmese side of the River Moei bordering Thailand. The Karen have fought for greater autonomy from Rangoon gov-eruments since the 1940s. The provisional government declaration was expected to be backed by members of the Democratic Alliance of Burma, an umbrella organisation for the 21 ethnic and other rebel groups fighting the central government. The current military government in Rangoon took power by force in 1988. Soldiers killed thousands of people who took part in a nationwide movement for democracy that year. The government has since arrested most leading members of the opposition. These include Aung San Sun Kyi, the head of the National League for Demo-Meanwhile medical and dental colleges in Burma, closed during a nationwide pro-democracy uprising two years ago, are to reopen early next year, the state press reported Tuesday. All schools and universities and other educational institutions were shut in July 1988 while authorities struggled to contain the student-led uprising. All classes in medical and dental colleges except first-year classes will resume. classes will resume on Jan. 15, the official Working People's Daily reported. It did not say why the first-year classes would not resume,

The military government began reopening schools in April 1989, starting with primary schools. High schools and some vocational institutions also reopened last year, but university gates remain locked.

duled hearing of appeals by six The six Irishmen were jailed to retain hanging for treason and prisoners who say they also were for life after being convicted of piracy, but may consider the wrongly convicted of murder in murder in 1975 in IRA bombings issue again later. TRA attacks. The last bangings in Britain. at two pubs in Birmingham in The Guildford four, three cian out of office.

Pro-hanging Conservative De Maiziere — latest victim of Stasi ghost BERLIN (R) - Lothar de Maizzere is the latest in a long line of victims hustled out of political office by persistent accusation, rumour and innuendo of ties to East Germany's dreaded Stasi security police. "We cannot afford a witchhunt." De Maiziere said last March when he became East Berlin's first and last democratic prime minister and tried quickly to stifle the Stasi legacy. But De Maiziere failed to exorcise the ghost of the intrusive Communist spy network from a united Germany.

The timid human rights lawyer quit the Bonn government and stepped down as deputy leader of Chancellor Helmut Kohl's Christian Democratic Union (CDU) Monday after news magazines accused him of having informed for the Stasi for eight

De Maiziere denied the allegations, saying his contact with the Stasi was limited to his work defending dissidents, but he stood down to save his party forther trouble.

Interior Minister Wolfgang Schaeuble, a CDU member, said there was evidence but no proof that De Maiziere could have been a spy codenamed Czerny.

"I would have to conclude, in all objectivity, that there are some indications that Czerny could have been De Maiziere. he said on television, but he added: "I remain completely unshaken in my personal confidence in Lothar De Maiziere." Once again the Stasi has proved so explosive an issue in German politics that the mere suggestion of involvement was enough to hound a senior politi-

The head of a small conservative party, Wolfgang Schnur, quit three days before East Germany's first democratic election in March after admitting he had spied for the Stasi.

Later Social Democrat leader Ibrahim Boehme and East German Transport Minister Axel Viehweger both stepped down, saying they were innocent but could not continue in office with the slur of Stasi involvement hanging over them.

In De Maiziere's case, the only public evidence was a Stasi filing card published by the news magazine Der Spiegel with his Berlin address as the home of an informer codenamed "czerny."

Der Spiegel has admitted it touched up the filing card to make the address "more legible" and is now embroiled in its own Stasi scandal over the past of its Berlin bureau chief.

The conservative newspaper Die Welt said it was outraged to see De Maiziere fall when prominent Communists like former party leaders Erich Honecker and Egon Krenz, former Premier Hans Modrow and former Stasi chief Erich Mielke were still free.

The Stasi's 85,000 agents and hundreds of thousands of parttime informers kept watch on every second East German adult, stuffing piles of undigested information into files with no criteria for analysis other than mounting paranoia.

The network systematically opened mail, eavesdropped on telephone calls, recorded, filmed, burgled and blackmailed in a feverish hunt for enemies of the Communist Party.

Large chunks of material have gone missing since the organisation was disbanded following last year's peaceful overthrow of Communist rule. But even existing information may have been manipulated or made up to tar enemies.

While prime minister, De Maiziere refused to publish or allow access to Stasi files despite protests from civil rights groups. saying it would lead to "murder and maybem." He supported Interior Minister Peter-Michael Diestel's policy of putting ex-Stasi agents in the civil service, saying they would be more dangerous if ostracised. This attempt to put East Germany's most sinister organisation gently to sleep backfired badly and Kohl's united German government has merely inherited the problem. De Maiziere has noted bitterly that the attacks on him were remarkably well-timed - coinciding with Kohl's choice of a new cabinet following his victory in this month's general election. "I won friends but obviously made enemies too," De Maiziere said in his resignation

Burmese general calls opposition's

ful member of Burma's military government has warned opposition politicians they would be making "a great mistake" by going along with plans to declare a rival government along with rebel groups, the Bangkok Post

The dissidents all fled the